OPENING OF THE GREAT EXHIBITION.

From Our Special Correspondent.

Paris, Tuesday, April 2, 1867.

The great event has taken place, followed by the great certainty. The Exposition has been opened, and it has commenced to rain again. I record the latter fact simply because yesterday, when the ceremonies came off, the weather was fine, and at this season any instance of the sort is worthy of honorable mention. The grand prize belongs to the other quality of weather. Anything more execrable than the sky, wind, sun, moon and stars of Paris, at this present writing, cannot well be imagined. For the opening, however, everything was auspicious. The quick, urgent animation of a Spring day permeated the city. The trees burst into life, the tulips and crocuses flushed into flower, the workmen and workwomen cast aside the cares of the world and sped their way jauntily toward the great show. Flags in clusters, and flags defiant and alone met you at every corner. Military gentlemen with more than the average allowance of wind flashed past you at every turning, carrying savage looking brass instruments upon which it was their fell purpose to play. From roof-tops insane enthusiasts looked down complacently upon nothing with patriotic pride, and "dilated with emotion." Every uniform in the country was before you, or round the corner, or over the way. The cabmen were pressed; but they were also calm and collected, and resolute on the subject of foreigners. Every one was active, pushing, pleased and happy. All bound for the Exposition, even the greater part of the flowers.

No, not every one pleased. Here and there you might detect a scowling, vicious, dangerous-looking countenance; a countenance that bore the expression of determined hostility to aught that existed in the way of authority. Where you came across such an unfortunate you knew at once that he was an exhibitor, a wretch who was being led forth to execution, an abandoned miscreant who was about to get what he deserved—and more. Poor devil! his condition was indeed pitiable. Invited by the Governments of his own country and of France to participate in a great national illustration of the spirit of the age, it was by no means remarkable that he should expect to be treated with something like consideration. He has discovered his mistake. Whenever it is desirable to have a thing indefinitely postponed it is polite and convenient to refer it to a Committee. Hereafter it will be more fashionable to refer it to a Commission. The word sounds big. The abandoned being that I have described knows that it is big in fact. If you love your own species do not ask an exhibitor what he thinks of a Commissioner. Where everything was a joke it would be folly to be serious. I do not propose to paint the grievances of exhibitors, but I must say that the joke, so far, has been at their expense. I will add that our own Commission shares the disfavor which hangs around and descends from the Imperial Commission. The exhibitors complain of uncivility on the part of Mr. Beckwith, and of frivolous objections to what they conceive to be their wants. It is, of course, impossible to please all, but a public functionary is certainly unfortunate when he fails to satisfy any one. A system of wholesale snubbing may be good among Europeans, but it is hardly likely to succeed among Americans. Mr. Beckwith has, I suppose, been overwrought. His labors have been arduous in the extreme. His correspondence alone would cover the Central Park, and I am told that he visits the Exposition with daily punctuality. It is to be hoped that he will be relieved of some of these duties. The Commissioners are gradually arriving in Paris, and will speedily drop into their working places. Such as are here now have their time entirely occupied in listening to complaints.

Let me return to the pleasant Spring day, and leave this horrid exhibitor, with his lantern-jaws, and blazing eyes, and tongue of fire, and speech of smoke. The Exhibition has opened, and no one in the world is likely to know it unless I narrate the story. The building itself has been described a hundred times. It is a combination of railroad station and bazaar—what is not refreshment-room being shop. You lose your way with great facility, and recover bearings by going in any given direction and then working out of it. The advantages for taking cold are remarkable. At every corner there is an east wind and a policeman. Both are attentive. There is an outside garden and an inside garden. The various Departments radiate from the latter, expanding fan like for each nationality. The part allotted to the United States is somewhat more than a sandwich and not quite a slice. Where the oval is smallest it looks like a passage; then it assumes the proportions of a closet, and so slips easily to the size of a workshop, where we hope to make some striking effects. It was a happy accident or a thoughtful civility that induced the Emperor to select this ring of the building for the official promenade. Royalty should ever have its eye on mechanics, and here, as it trod the raised platform, it had the opportunity of gazing upon many of the most ingenious wonders of the age. This platform was a mile long, slim, narrow and business-like, with a railing on each side, and occasional stations. At the latter the Foreign Commissioners were assembled. The United States station smelt like a lamp, but was neatly decorated. Here various gentlemen forming part of the United States Commission, and worthy of commiseration were in attendance—dressed stiffly in tail-coats and white cravats, and waiting dismally for the proud moment. On the left were the English Commissioners, on the right the Japanese. The latter were in great force. They had several long swords, a banjo, a thing like a drum, and an interpreter. The procession halted at the Japanese place before reaching the United States, and the Emperor and Empress were for several minutes regaled with a special entertainment. The thing like a drum made a disturbance, the banjo twanged a fearful discord, and I strongly suspect that the principal Commissioner swallowed all the swords. Then, gravely and languidly, the procession, black and ugly in color, and with nothing to relieve it save orders and decorations, approached. It looked like a funeral. The leading officials of the household, Cabinet, &c., came first, and then the Emperor and Empress. A few friendly words were said to Mr. Beckwith, who acknowledged them courteously. The Empress smiled on all with sweet and exquisite friendliness, but reserved her speech for Dr. Evans of the United States Commission, who was fortunate enough to monopolize her attention. It was a topic of general remark that the Emperor was unusually feeble in his bearing. The Prince Imperial did not make his appearance. He has been ailing for many days, but is said to be better. After a due amount of bowing, the procession proceeded on its way—receiving the general officials and their ladies in the English picture-gallery, and then dispersing.

Never before was a great public enterprise so silently inaugurated. The Emperor and his charming lady were applauded; but the numbers were scant, and their voices were inadequate to the occasion. There was hardly any music. Everything, indeed, was echo.

And rightly, too, for the building was empty, and worse than empty—it was in confusion. One might as well have a house-warming when he has built the first story of a new residence as to call the affair yesterday an opening. The American department is wild and chaotic. Nothing whatever has been done, and the bitterest feeling prevails against the management of the Commission. It is affirmed that not only does it fail to help others, but that it prevents others from helping themselves. Similar complaints fortunately prevail in other sections of the building, so that the fault is not wholly with ourselves.

THE EXPOSITION—POLITICS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Paris, Tuesday, April 2, 1867.

FACTS ABOUT THE EXHIBITION.

The great Exhibition is really magnificent, or is going to be magnificent. We see in the English papers that it is a "failure" and a "humbug," but those who write thus have either not seen it as I have seen it, or they have gone there with prejudices, or they have been put out of humor by the close dealing of the Company, neither of which excuses are sufficient to make a man go against the facts. The Exhibition was far from complete at the opening, but that is no reason for attacking the managers: no great exhibition ever was perfect at the commencement.

The building is not handsome; neither is it ugly. It simply strikes one as being well adapted to the purpose in view. Unlike previous exhibitions, it was not designed to strike visitors so much by the container as by the contained. And in this the managers have succeeded. One is bewildered by the mass of wealth, and by the multiplicity of objects and of forms it contains. The visitor goes from surprise to surprise, until he becomes a standing exclamation point. He comes out wondering where it all came from, and whether the world has made a sudden advance, or whether it is only the result of a progressive development. He is so bewildered that the town looks like a fair, and the Place de la Concorde, with its magnificent monuments and decorations, appears only like a continuation of what he has just seen. They even seem to turn around in circles, like the enchanted galleries of the Exhibition. If it produces such an effect on a Parisian, what effect must it produce on the poor Japanese, and Chinese, and Liponians, and Finlandese, who gape in utter incomprehensibility through its wonderful circles? The tales of wonder they will tell when they get home, will sound like fairy tales, good for the amusement of children.

The French department is naturally the most wonderful and the most interesting to the general observer. Its bronzes and sculptured woods are especially hors ligne. Those of other countries are mere toys compared to them. The porcelain of Sevres and the tapestry of the Gobelins, and of Beauvais are also beyond all comparison with other countries. In every article of luxury which is used in the furnishing of a house, or every object of costly wearing apparel, from the diadem of diamonds on the head to the boots on the feet, the French excel. But it is all luxury, luxury. All for the rich, nothing for the poor. It is the perfection which will draw much money from the rich, not the perfection which will bring comfort to the poor. And in a general way I should say that the poor have no business in this Exhibition, for it was not made for them, and, beyond the artisan class, they will draw little from it to ameliorate their condition, except in a very indirect way.

In the Fine Arts department the Germans and Russians have offered the French a surprise, for their works are very superior, and offer a serious competition to the French school. So too the Italian school of art is represented by works of the very first merit. The English department of art occupies a very large space, and is distinguished as usual, when brought into competition with French and Italian art by the better choice of subjects, or I might say by the higher degree of sentiment which runs through them. Their drawing is naturally less perfect than the French, and their coloring more timid and less characteristic; but their pictures have more humanity in them. In a word they are less artistic than the French, but they give rise to more thought.

Another observation. The French have passed that period in the manufacture of bronzes, furniture, interior ornaments, jewelry, and wearing apparel, in which light and showy and gew-gaw things were admissible, and some of the continental nations, especially those of the North, who are yet in the flimsy, showy, gew-gaw period, have had the maladresse to send quite a lot of representative goods. The Exhibition will have the happy result of killing and interring this order of goods, and of replacing it with a less showy but more solid and more purely artistic order. This remark only applies, however, to the civilized nations; for, for the showy and almost worthless goods of the Mohammedan and Moorish races there is no reform to be expected. A reform of this kind would be out of keeping with their national characteristics.

The French and English departments are finished, or about finished. The American department looks as if it would be finished last. And yet there is not much in it—nothing like what we had anticipated by the row made in Congress about it, and especially by the army of Commissioners which the Government took care to send out. Up to the evening of opening there was about one object to each of the sixty Commissioners; and these honorable gentlemen are in a fair way of becoming, as were the thirty-four in 1855, the laughing-stock of the Exhibition. I am sure that most of the gentlemen, if they could have been admitted to see their department before presenting their credentials, would never have done so. Nevertheless I am assured that the space allotted to us will be filled, and with objects which will make their mark in the Exhibition. I have great confidence in the progressive skill of our artisans and inventors, and it is progress which will gain the recompenses. New ideas make the word move more than polish in finish.

Was it intent or accident that placed the Viceroy of Egypt alongside the American department? However that may be, I should explain that each department in the Exhibition is decorated in the style and in the colors peculiar to the nation to which it belongs, and that in all the smaller departments especially the effect is very striking and very characteristic. Now it so happens that the American department, like the people it represents, is very plain and unpretentious—in fact, it looks like a hall, or an unfinished place, and is called mean and niggardly by the Company which built the Palace. Alongside of it, and along its whole length, with a fifteen-feet alley intervening, is the gaudy and richly decorated department of the rich Viceroy of Egypt, the richest exhibitor in the building, and apparently the "most regardless of cost" individual on the ground. Imagine the effect. On one side heavy and gaudily painted Moorish arcades, looking, in their long stretch of open panel, like a reproduction of the Alhambra; on the other side—well, nothing but a vacant space, with plain, very shop-keeping looking cases, scattered along here and there, with still plainer things in them. There is even a case of shirts from Philadelphia, at which the dark Egyptian noses across the way constantly turn up! But wait till the end of the Exhibition. He that laughs first will not certainly laugh last. We shall have lots of medals, and His Highness the Viceroy will have none! And that's what he'll get for his pains.

In definitive I should say that the Exhibition, making an exception for the building, which is of no consequence, is so far ahead of any of its predecessors, both in quantity and quality, as not to admit of comparison. It is, in fact, the great event in the history of the time, and no man in any country who has the time, the money and the health, ought to fail to see it.

The Emperor did not make a speech yesterday at the opening, because in the critical condition of his own and European affairs he was afraid to commit himself to anything. His Majesty was made, perhaps, to sympathize a little with the Press which he makes afraid to speak all the year round.

AN EXCITING SCENE IN THE FRENCH SENATE.

A strange and violent scene occurred the other day in the French Senate. The public are quite as much surprised to see the life and vivacity displayed by that body as by the subject matter of the incident. Perhaps the Senate was anxious to defend itself from the title of "Hospital for Invalids," "Museum of Fossils," and other distasteful epithets bestowed upon it by the public. At any rate the incident is worth copying, and is as follows:

A Catholic member, Count Segur d'Aguesseau, in discussing the bill on primary education, said incidentally that "the Minister of Public Instruction ought to feel remorse all his life for an appointment which was a great scandal." [Murmurs.]

M. de Saint Beuve (Senator and Member of the French Academy)—I protest against personal imputation directed against honorable men, and which do not belong to the question.

The President—M. de Saint Beuve will please not interrupt the discussion.

M. Saint Beuve, continuing—If it be to M. Renan that the honorable M. de Segur d'Aguesseau pretends to allude, I protest against an accusation made against a man of conviction and of talent, whom I have the honor to claim as a friend. [Order! Order!]

The President—I did not remark any personalities in the observation of M. de Segur d'Aguesseau. He spoke of certain doctrines, but without mentioning names. [Numerous and loud calls to order.]

The Baron Chapuis-Montlaville—It is impossible not to feel profoundly afflicted at hearing eulogized the authors of certain modern literature which tramples under foot the laws of eternal order, and attacks religion, the basis of social order. [Applause.] No one has the right to come here to eulogize the men who carry the incendiary torch into society, spreading broadcast among the masses the dangerous doctrines of atheism and irreligion. Their writings are a social danger against which all good men are called upon to unite all their energies. We protest against these doctrines with all the force of our convictions. [Great applause.] Immorality is running wild, and it belongs to this honorable body to point out to the Government the means of meeting it with a remedy. For my own part I shall not be wanting in the work; it is an obligation I shall not seek to evade.

[From all sides of the house, "Good! Good!"]

M. de Saint-Beuve again tries to get the floor, but from all parts of the house there come cries of "Order! order!"

M. de Saint-Beuve, (with energy, and dominating the confusion)—M. d'Aguesseau has spoken of two things. There is in our day a current of immorality and obscenity which no one defends, and which we reprove with all our force; but there are also honorable and respectable philosophical opinions which I defend in the name of the liberty of thought, and which I shall never allow to be attacked and calumniated without protesting. ["Order! order!"]

M. de Maupas—You will stand alone, then, in the Senate in defending such doctrines.

[From all sides, "That is so!"]

The Count de Grossolles-Flamarens—It is the first time that atheism has found a defender within these walls.

Marshal Canrobert, (turning toward M. de Saint-Beuve)—You are not here, Sir, to defend a man who has denied the divinity of Christ, and who has set himself up as the implacable enemy of the religion of our fathers, and which is still the religion of the great majority of Frenchmen. ["Good! good!" Prolonged and loud applause.]

M. de Maupas—The occasion is a good one for the Senate to protest energetically against such a work, and against the anti-religious and immoral tendencies of of which it is the apologist. ["Yes, yes!" Applause.]

M. de Saint Beuve pronounced some words not heard in the confusion by the reporters. ["Order! Order!"]

The President—If you persist in your interruptions, Monsieur Saint-Beuve, I shall be obliged to call you to order. You know that you are provoking incidents of a nature to disturb the habitual calm of the deliberations of the Senate. No one was thinking of M. Renan; it was you that brought him into the discussion by naming him. Believe me you will do well to renounce the prolongation of the incident. [From all parts of the house, "Good! good!"]

Several members tried to get the floor, but the President stopped the discussion on the incident, and brought the Senate back to the question in debate.

The Press takes sides generally with M. de Saint Beuve. They may not, and many of them do not, agree with him on the subject of the author of the Life of Christ, but they stand up for free thought and for M. de Saint-Beuve's defence of it in the person of M. Renan. The caustic Journal des Débats terminates a leader on the subject by saying that "the honorable commander of the Army of Paris (Marshal Canrobert) may find it still harder to control free thought in matters of religion than he did to take Sebastopol!"—which is rather a hard hit at the man who failed in that enterprise.

ANOTHER ROW ABOUT FREE THOUGHT.

The same question of free thought, but in another form, has also made a row at the School of Medicine. Three of the new Professors, Drs. Broca, See and Vulpian, commenced their course of lectures at the School by laying down the principle that students ought not to admit that there was anything, either structural or functional in the human body, beyond their comprehension. For example, they were not to be arrested in their investigations of the circulation of the blood by any idea that this function was other than a hydraulic operation to be explained by ordinary laws of physics; that the function of digestion was anything else than a purely chemical operation, which might be performed as well in a glass tumbler as in the stomach; that in fine the functions of the nervous system itself were within the reach of the human mind. This complete denial of the doctrines of the vitalists, the reader will understand, was made in order not to limit the field of a student's study; it was made in order to give him a hope that by pushing his investigations further than other men, he might make new and useful discoveries in the science he was going to study.

But the authorities did not see the thing in the same light. At first a few students, at one of Dr. Lee's lectures, attempted a protestation, and provoked such a storm from the other side as made it necessary to break up the lecture. Then the three free-thinking Professors were sent for by the Minister of Public Instruction and of Worship, M. Duruy, who held to them language something like this: "Those doctrines may be well enough for you and for me, but they will not do for the masses. They are contrary to the teachings of the Church; they are contrary to the belief of the large majority of Frenchmen; they are contrary to the traditions of both Church and State, which have always held that it is better for the masses that they should be thought for by the Church and State authorities; in a word, that free thinking in matters that related to the soul should be discouraged, and if possible prevented."

And thus the three young Professors who, in their desire to elevate and give new life to the declining French School, had hoped to stimulate the young men into new channels of observation, were cut short by their superiors, and obliged to fall back on the old-fashioned doctrine that a certain large part of the functional phenomena of the human body is vital, and therefore beyond comprehension.

But is it not strange that so many of the men who understand best the wonderful and complicated machinery of human life should be skeptics?

A STILL MORE EXCITING SCENE AT THE CORPS LEGISLATIF.

The papers have published but a very pale and emasculated account of the famous scene in the Chamber a week ago during the debate on the foreign policy of the Government, or, as M. Thiers had it, the faults of the Government. The scene lasted, in spite of the President's efforts a quarter of an hour, and the most savage and insulting words, calling up the souvenir of the events which inaugurated the Empire, were thrown across the hall, creating an indescribable scene of excitement and confusion. The ball was was opened by M. Rouher by the mention of the 2d December, the date of the coup d'état, to which M. Jules Favre replied angrily, "Don't mention the 2d December in this hall!" Then when M. Rouher forgot himself, in his anger, and exclaimed, "Vous êtes des factieux et des energumènes!" ("You are but factious and evil men!") M. Pelletan hurled back: "Et vous, vous êtes des bandits!" ("And you are bandits!") M. Thiers tried to make himself heard in the tumult but was ordered to be silent, and as he talked on he worked himself into such a paroxysm of anger that he at last exclaimed: "Imprison me! kill me! do what you please with me!" and then sank exhausted in his seat. Imagine, if you can, the little fat old man in a towering passion, with his arms extended high above his head, and screaming at the top of his squeaking voice, without change of tone: "Imprisonnez-moi! Tuez-moi! Faites de moi ce que vous voudrez! Je suis prêt!" And thus the storm went on till all the old accumulations of fifteen years of epithets had been belched out.

THE INTRIGUES OF THE RUE DE L'ARCADE.

But I have something better than this to tell you. The resignation of the Count Walewski, President of the Corps Legislatif, is one of the most important events of the Second Empire. In face of the Exhibition we are making history all the same. The events through which we are passing will read as curious in after times as anything in past history. The Rue de Poitiers of former days is having its counterpart in the Rue de l'Arcade of to-day. Listen to the history.

The Count Walewski, who is a son of the first Emperor, is a Liberal, and has democratic tendencies, like most of the Bonaparte family. A few months ago he recommended to the Emperor the liberal measures His Majesty afterward promulgated, and he recommended at the same time the nomination of a Ministry to carry out the liberal measures which should be led by M. Emile Ollivier and the Viscount de la Gueronniere as its principal members. At that moment the position of M. Rouher and M. de Lavallette in the Cabinet was seriously threatened. When they found it out, however, they went to work and so far recovered the position as to preserve their portfolios, but not far enough to induce the Emperor to forego his intention of publishing the plan of liberal measures contained in the Imperial letter of the 19th of January.

Now, when this letter was published there was a cry of horror (the word is hardly an exaggeration) on the part of the retrograde friends of the Government. "Comment!" they said; "on va nous déborder avec la democratie!" Then M. Rouher and the Marquis de Lavallette went to work intriguing. The first object to be attained was the crippling of the liberal measures so that they should be ineffective; the second was to get rid of the Count Walewski as President of the Corps Legislatif. How were these objects to be accomplished? M. Gravier de Cassagnac, Bonapartist deputy and a reactionist, and the Baron Jerome David, idem, undertook the enterprise. The first step was to form a Club composed of reactionary members of the Corps Legislatif, and this Club, which gathered up about ninety members, established itself in a handsome locale in the Rue de l'Arcade, (close by, within pistol-shot of where I am writing these lines.) The formation of this Club has been the leading mystery and the leading sensation of the town for a fortnight. That ninety men of the intelligence of these men, in emancipated and democratic France, with all Europe enlightened around them, and in this advanced age of progress and a higher civilization, should organise, in a permanent way, to intrigue systematically for reactionary measures, is an event so anomalous and stands out in such bold relief in a society and an epoch which have such entirely different aspirations, that one does not wonder at the importance given it in people's minds.

But the most curious of all is that this club has already so far succeeded in the object of its organization that Messrs. Rouher and De Lavallette are stronger than ever at the Palace; that the liberal measures of the 19th of January have been converted into projects of law so embarrassed with prohibitions as to make them a mockery and a delusion; that they have forced M. Walewski to resign, and that, finally, they have arrived at such a point that the secret tribunal of the Rue de l'Arcade governs the Government, makes and unmakes laws, makes and unmakes Ministers and Presidents of Chambers. The "Arcadians" triumph along the whole line, and the good Parisians, really scandalized at such state of things, froth and foam and gesticulate up and down the pavements of the Boulevard, and do nothing!

Are they not making curious history for their grandchildren?

In the meantime curious stories are being told of the movements of the Prince Napoleon and the other liberal members of the Bonaparte family, which may or may not be true, but which show, at least, the current of the public mind. The Prince was not present at the opening of the Exhibition, and the political public are so occupied about these events that the Exhibition for them passes without notice.

The purchase by the United States of Russian America was not looked for here and created great surprise. Several of the papers exclaim that the prediction of De Tocqueville has commenced its realization.

MALAKOFF.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Cession of Russian America.

In the House of Lords, on the 2d, the Earl of Clarendon said:

"In the absence of the noble Earl at the head of the Government, I take the liberty of asking any of the noble Lords opposite whether they may be able to give the House any information on a subject of great public interest. I allude to the cession of a large portion of the Russian territory to the United States, of which we received intimation yesterday by telegraph. A similar question was asked yesterday in another place, and my noble friend at the head of the Foreign Office said that he had telegraphed to St. Petersburgh for information, and had not yet received an answer."

To which the Duke of Buckingham replied:

"I am much obliged to the noble Earl for having put the question, because it affords me an opportunity, in the absence of my noble friend at the head of the Government, of giving all the information which we at present possess with reference to the cession of Russian America. Within the last two hours a communication has been received from St. Petersburgh confirming the impression that negotiations have been entered upon, or are on foot, for the purpose of treating with the United States for the cession of that territory; but how far these negotiations have progressed, whether they have arrived at any definite point, or whether an answer or communication has been received from the United States, the authorities at St. Petersburgh were not aware when the information thence was sent to us. The question of the cession of that portion of America to the United States is one like to cause great feeling and possibly considerable excitement; but I trust it will not be allowed to have undue weight in the minds of Englishmen, for I cannot myself think that the cession or purchase, if it be so, by the United States is likely to have such overwhelming influence upon the progress of the colonies sprung from English blood which have been established on that side of the world as at first sight might be imagined."

UNITED STATES OF COLOMBIA.

Coup d'Etat of Gen. Mosquera in Bogota—Revolution in Magdalena—Prospect of Same in Panama.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Wednesday, April 3, 1867.

The ship of State has stranded. The Constitution, Congress and Supreme Court are high and dry on a lee shore. Dates from the capital, by telegraph to Honda, the head of Magdalena steamer navigation, say that on the 14th the Government of the United States of Colombia, based on sand and guaranteed on parchment, the ink of which is scarcely dry, ceased to exist. The report of President Mosquera's enemies here is, that on that day he sent his armed cohorts into the chambers of the House of Representatives and Senate, and arrested and imprisoned sixty-eight out of the eighty-three members. Also, that he arrested and imprisoned Ex-President Murillo, the leader of the opposition. This action, or something like it, you must have anticipated from the tenor of my previous letters. But doubtless, when the facts reach us by mail, they will read a little differently. That Mosquera is at this moment Dictator or Emperor, or whatever he may choose to style himself, is probable. That he sent soldiers into the halls of Congress to break up that body is scarcely a supposable case. He is too astute for that. He alleges that Congress is seeking to overthrow him, as the Constitutional President, and that they wish to make a revolution. What will come out of it nobody can guess. My own opinion is that Mosquera is too strong for the opposition. They have no leader of any prestige, no money, no organization—nothing, in fact, necessary for successful resistance. Mosquera is probably the best soldier in Spanish America. He has many devoted military lieutenants and enthusiastic supporters in all the old soldiers that followed his fortunes and participated in his wonderful march from the Pacific shores four years since to Bogota, the capital, on the overthrow of Ospina. Besides, he has taken care, in advance, to secure all the States and seaports on the Atlantic and Pacific.

By the same mail that brings us the scanty information from Bogota, we know positively that President Mosquera has seized all the steamers on the Magdalena River, including those of the American Company, to be used in transporting troops, and to shut up the Nare, Cauca and other rivers that empty into the Magdalena, and water Antioquia and the interior States that may resist him. That he sent one of his household, Dr. Manuel Moreno, late of Panama, to the coast State of Magdalena, who, a few days since, in concert with Gen. Neira and Gen. Level de Goda, (both of whom were lately expelled from this State for attempting a revolution,) overthrew the opposition government of that State, and that the Doctor fully succeeded in carrying out his instructions, without shedding a drop of blood. Bolivar, the capital of which is Carthagena, was already in his hands, and so was Cauca, the only coast State except Panama on the Pacific. It only remains for him now to take possession of this State, Panama, which will give him the full control of all the seacoast of the Republic, to enable him, with his war steamer Bolivar, lately arrived in Cauca from England, the Columbia, his Atlantic war steamer, and his steamers on the great artery, the Magdalena, to control what opposition he may encounter in the five interior States.

The Santa Martha accounts say that Gen. Level de Goda, at the head of only 300 men, marched into Santa Martha by order of Gen. Mosquera; upon which Gen. Abello, at the head of 400 men, threw away his arms and fled with all his men to the woods and to a little puebla called Rinconcito, where he was threatening vengeance against Gen. Lovel in case he could recover his arms, "which he couldn't." The accounts also say that the R. R. Cuyler, now called the Rajo, lately bought from the United States under cover of the Colombian Government, for the use of Chili and Peru against Spain, landed five cannon and a large number of men on the public plaza at Santa Martha, to support the cause of Mosquera and "keep the peace." But this statement, I learn from the best sources, is incorrect. The Rajo did land men and guns, but they were landed and kept on the sand-beach to protect her mechanics in the construction of the torpedo boats, intended for the destruction of Spanish vessels about Porto Rico and Cuba. I learn further that the Rajo was only waiting to finish these boats, and for the arrival of her commander, the Confederate Reed, to proceed to Kingston, Jamaica, for coal. As Reed left Aspinwall March 25 for Santa Martha, the Rajo must have left by this time for Kingston.

It is pretty well understood here that when Dr. Moreno gets well through with his job in the State of Magdalena, he is to come to Panama to repeat the same process. The troops for the business will no doubt be sent from the State of Cauca in the war ship Bolivar. They may be expected in about thirty days. In the meantime Gen. Olarte, President of Panama, is in the interior making a sort of military tour, but has been sent for, and is expected in a day or two. His friends say he will resist Mosquera's forces, and if need be declare the State independent. My own opinion is that we shall have no fighting the State will fall quietly into the hands of Mosquera's friends, who doubtless, are in the majority, if allowed freely to express and act upon their opinions. At any rate, there will be no danger to American interests, as we have war steamers on both sides, and the Consuls have precise instructions to use them in turbulent times.

Hon. Allan A. Burton, for six years Resident Minister of the United States at Bogota, goes to New-York on this steamer. It is hardly probable that Mr. Peter J. Sullivan will be sent out to take his place before the Colombian Government explains its conduct toward Mr. Burton. The difficulty between Mr. Bunch, British Chargé, and President Mosquera has not yet been settled. Mr. Bell, who represents French interests at Bogota, in the absence of Mr. Roslan, is also at loggerheads with President Mosquera; also, the Minister of Peru, who is charged with American interests by Mr. Burton, has had a misunderstanding with the "Grand General," but I believe the thing has been settled.

A conspiracy, before the foregoing news was received, to overthrow the State Government of Panama, was discovered in time to frustrate it. Three of the leaders were seized and imprisoned, and the principal, Señor Casanova, was exiled, and went to San Francisco yesterday.

The United States ship Jamestown, it is said, will leave to-day for San Francisco. I believe she has but little sickness now on board. The Government at Washington, if it has not already ordered a vessel to Panama from Callao in her place, will no doubt do so at once, in view of the present situation. The Saco is at Aspinwall.

A line of steamers from Hamburg and Southampton is announced for Aspinwall. There is plenty of business for it.

Mr. Gamble, United States Vice-Consul at Panama, goes home on this steamer. Cause—ill health of self and wife. Capt. Chapman, late United States Consul at Barranquilla, and one of the principal merchants of this coast, is also a passenger. Mrs. Shailer, mother-in-law of Gen. Kilpatrick, Minister to Chili, also goes home on the Ocean Queen.

The Reported Arrest of Congressmen by President Mosquera Denied—The Facts of the Case.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Panama, Wednesday, April, 3—3 P. M.

California trains left here at 10 o'clock. At 2 P. M. the Danube arrived at Aspinwall, from Carthagena, with dates from Bogota to the 17th March. The following points in the news she brings are sufficiently important to warrant my forwarding them by telegraph:

The story of the arrest and imprisonment of Congressmen by the President is not true. The facts are these: Congress having passed a resolution against Gen. Mosquera's decree on "Public Order," in which it is properly assumed that it is the duty of the National Government to preserve order in the States, or rather, to prevent "revolution" in the States, the President notified Congress that he did not consider it a legal body, alleging that it had admitted members not qualified by law. Upon this, negotiations were commenced between Congress and the Executive, which resulted in a settlement of the quarrel, and Congress continues it sessions as usual.

The Mosquera party hold their ground in the State of Magdalena. Gen. Level de Goda has garrisoned Santa Martha with 300 men. Abello, the deposed Governor, has only 130 men in the suburbs, or somewhere else near the city, and is without arms.

Gen. Mosquera has withdrawn the exequatur of Mr. Fonblanc, British Consul at Carthagena, on account of recent events growing out of the visit of the British corvette Doris at that place.

No doubt Panama will be subjected to Gen. Mosquera and his party so soon as the preparations are complete.

The Mexican Butchery Again—Further Confirmation.

The following protest, signed by European officers of the late Imperial Army in Mexico, affords further confirmation of the reported execution of prisoners by the Liberal General. It appears in the Courrier of Mexico—it may not be genuine though we see no reason to doubt it:

Mexico, Feb. 23, 1867.

Mr. Editor: We come to beg you, in the name of all our comrades, French, Austrian and Belgians, of the Mexican army, to publish in your columns our protest against the infamous act committed by Escobedo, after the battle of San Jacinto.

To coolly order the death of soldiers made prisoners in battle is one of those acts which would stain a flag forever; but to attempt to excuse such by throwing an insult to those who fought loyally, is an infamy which has moved all our sentiments and caused us to shed tears of indignation and ire.

Escobedo proclaims us bandits, because the flag of intervention has left the country and that we stayed to loyally fulfill the contract binding us to the service of Mexico.

We are bandits because we are foreigners and belong to no flag! We are only the dregs of all nations, who, like the Condottierri of old, sell our services to those who pay for them!

This is to what we came, thanks to Mr. the Marshal Bazaine, this is the fate reserved us because we choose to keep the word that he authorized us to give, and of which he had no right to relieve us.

We know well the source of the blow which fell on our unhappy brother in arms. We know who designed us to a similar death, if the chance of arms makes us fall into the hands of that ferocious enemy, for whom the words, civilization and humanity are words void of sense.

In effect, what was the Marshal's answer to the noble and fraternal call made by the Emperor to the Mexican army in favor of the French soldiers who would remain in his ranks?

He answered by an unqualified act. He stated that the law declared: Deprived of the quality of French subjects, "all Frenchmen entering into foreign service without an authorization from the Government."

Was it not reducing to a state of outcast those who loyally offered their swords to a Government founded by France and supported by France during four years.

But we had the authorization spoken of. Yourself gave it to us, yourself commissioned us, and it is you who now want us to break our oath.

An oath is sacred; Mr. the Marshal and you have no power over our consciences.

This iniquitous declaration, which made us almost outcasts from the rights of the people, was used as a pretext for the insults and murders of Escobedo.

Will not the blood spilled fall upon the head of the one who was the first cause of that butchery?

It cannot be; and as you say in your editorial of to-day, Mr. Editor, the dead will one day come out of their graves and say: "Cain! what hast thou done with thy brother?"

But, that blood demands vengeance, and we shall avenge it.

Let His Majesty's Government form with us, as many as we are, French Austrians and Belgians, a legion; let it place us in the vanguard, under Miramon's command. We will march, we will fight and we will die to the last of us, until we shall have avenged our comrades. Then it will be seen if we resemble those coward bandits who murder prisoners and keep the wounded for new 'hecatombs.'

In closing, we call upon the soldiers of the European army in the enemy's ranks. They will understand that they cannot remain with those who cowardly murdered their countrymen. Let them come to us, forgetting the past, and one tie—the legitimate vengeance—unites us all.

Accept, Mr. Editor, with our thanks, the assurance of our highest consideration.

Friesk, Lieutenant of Artillery; Beckeck, Lieutenant 17th of the line; Baudes, Lieutenant 15th of the line; Chevilet, Second Lieutenant 14th of the line; Chastagnier, Lieutenant 8th of the line; Tremblot, Second Lieutenant 17th of the line; Certain, Second Lieutenant of Artillery; Capoot, Second Lieutenant of Artillery; Diver, Captain of Artillery; Cavet, Second Lieutenant 10th Cavalry.

Death of Dr. Howe, at Amherst, Mass.

Springfield, Mass., Monday, April 15.

The final session of the Coroner's jury in the case of Dr. Henry A. Howe, who was supposed to have been murdered a few days since in a house of ill-fame at Holyoke, was held at Amherst to-day, and a verdict rendered that he did not come to his death by violence. A post-mortem examination showed a large clot of blood at the base of the brain, produced by the use of liquor and excessive indulgence, which proved fatal in a period of exhaustion and over-exertion.

W. W. Watkins' iron foundry, at Hinsdale, was burned on Friday night. Loss, $1,200; insurance, $3,000.

The annual session of the Troy Methodist Conference will commence at Pittsfield, to-morrow, Bishop D. W. Clark, of Cincinnati, Ohio, presiding.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—PART I—APRIL 15.

Before Judge Mason and a Jury.

LIABILITIES OF COMMON CARRIERS.

William Kübele vs. Chas. C. Leary et al.—This was an action brought to recover the loss of certain baggage. In the Autumn of 1865 the plaintiff took passage at a European port for New-York, in the steamship Circassian, of which the defendants were the owners. That steamer was wrecked at Rocky Bay, somewhere on the Newfoundland Banks, in November, 1865. The passengers and baggage were saved by means of tugs and sailing vessels, and taken to Halifax. The plaintiff had a trunk which was taken on shore and delivered into his possession, but afterward arrangements were made by defendants whereby the plaintiff's baggage, with others, was to be conveyed to New-York, the place of destination. Plaintiff's baggage did not arrive in New-York, and hence the suit for the amount of between $600 and $700. After hearing all the facts of the case, the jury, after a charge from the Court, rendered a verdict for $664 76, to which five per cent., by way of costs, was added. Thirty days were granted in which to make a case on appeal.

For plaintiff, Mr. Egan; for defendants, Mr. Sewell.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM—PART I.—APRIL 15.

Before Judge Jones and a Jury.

ACTION AGAINST A RAILROAD COMPANY FOR PERSONAL INJURIES.

Matthias Hoffman vs. The Sixth-avenue Railroad Company.—This is an action for injuries sustained by plaintiff in consequence of the alleged willful negligence of a driver in the employ of defendants. On the 28th of November last, plaintiff, who is a tailor, residing at New-Rochelle, took passage in a Sixth-avenue car to ride down town. On arriving at the corner of Canal-street and West Broadway, plaintiff requested the driver to stop the car for him to get off, which he refused to do. Plaintiff stood on the front platform, with a basket of meat and a bundle of clothing. After asking the driver a second time to stop, he complied, and plaintiff attempted to get off. While alighting from the car the driver saw a drop of blood fall from the basket to the platform, whereat he called the plaintiff a "d—d Dutchman," and immediately started the car, thereby throwing the plaintiff to the ground and injuring him so severely that he has been an invalid ever since. The defence is that the plaintiff attempted to alight from the car before it came to a full stop, and thereby brought the injury upon himself. Case still on.

Van Pelt and Hull for plaintiff; John H. Platt for defendants.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—GENERAL TERM—APRIL 15.

Before Judges Daly, Brady and Cardoso.

The Calendar was called as far as No. 62. Several cases were argued and submitted.

DEATH OF MR. STAFFORD.

Frank Byrne, announced to the Court the death of Mr. R. Stafford, a well-known member of the bar, and after pronouncing a fitting eulogy upon the deceased as an able, faithful and honorable member of the profession, who, by his courtesy and kindness had endeared himself to his professional brethren, moved that the Court adjourn out of respect to his memory.

The Court granted the motion and expressed its regret at the death of Mr. Stafford, heartily concurring in all Mr. Byrne had said of his character.

WHAT HOUR OF THE DAY IS A NOTE PAYABLE?

James R. Hills vs. George Place.—This was an action to recover the value of a note for $230 drawn by defendant in favor of plaintiff, and made payable on a certain day at the Hanover Bank. On the day the note became due it was presented at the Bank and payment refused because defendant had no funds on deposit.

The defence was that funds were deposited in the bank at 2 P. M. of the day on which the note was made payable—an hour or two subsequent to the time the note was presented by plaintiff. The issue was merely one of costs, the defendant claiming that if funds were on deposit for the payment of the note at any time during banking hours it was sufficient.

The Court held, as matter of law, that the plaintiff was not bound to present the note for payment more than once, and that he could do that at any time after the bank opened. The jury were accordingly directed to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff.

J. R. Hills for plaintiff; H. C. Place for defendant.

Present, Leonard, P. J., and Sutherland and Ingraham, J. J.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Before Recorder Hackett.

The Court disposed of a considerable amount of business yesterday, much to the dismay of a number of thieves who were sent to the State Prison for terms varying from five years to one year.

SENTENCED TO THE STATE PRISON.

Louis E. Douge, indicted for grand larceny, was put on trial. On the 7th of March the prisoner, who is a well known thief, went to the house No. 34 East Twelfth-street, and entered the room occupied by Mr. George Pierce, and while there stole a gold hunting-case watch of the value of $125. It was proven that the prisoner pretended to have called to see a friend, and that after he left Mr. Pierce's room the watch was missed. He was sentenced to the State Prison for five years.

Wm. Canfield and Peter Burk, indicted for larceny from the person, were tried. The testimony showed that Mrs. Anna A. Laudon was, on the 26th of March, passing up West Thirteenth-street, near Ninth-avenue, when two youths, named Wm. Canfield and Peter Burk, came up to her, and Canfield snatched her pocket-book from her hand and ran away. Mrs. Laudon could not positively identify Burk as being the youth who accompanied Canfield, but the police officers in the case knew them both, and testified that they were continual companions. Canfield was sentenced to the State Prison for five years, and Burk was discharged.

Margaret Tucker pleaded guilty of an attempt at grand larceny. On the 22d of March the prisoner, with Margaret Hornet, stole from Jared Steele, of No. 31 Madison-street, a silver watch and gold chain of the value of $60. She said that she got the watch and chain from her companion, Hornet, and that they then sold them and divided the proceeds. Miss Tucker was sentenced to the State Prison for three years and six months.

Henry C. Harmstead pleaded guilty of an attempt to commit grand larceny. On the 9th inst. Mr. John E. Beeson came from New-Haven, and on his way gave his baggage check to an agent of Studley's City Express. After the arrival of the train the trunk so transferred to the City Express Company was stolen from the depot by the prisoner. The trunk contained clothing &c. of the value of $260. It was subsequently found by two of the Ninth Precinct Police in a house in Watts-street, where they also found the prisoner. He intended to plead not guilty and have a trial, but when he saw the jury impanneled he concluded to plead guilty of an attempt and save himself at least half of his time in prison. He was sentenced to the State Prison for two years and six months.

Thomas O'Day pleaded guilty of an attempt to commit grand larceny. On the 21st of March he stole from Martin Murphy articles of wearing apparel of the value of $50, which were subsequently found in his possession. He was sentenced to the State Prison for two years and six months.

August Hoffman pleaded guilty to forgery in the fourth degree. On the 16th of March the prisoner borrowed from Adolph Wilken, of No. 447 Third-avenue, the sum of $150, on the strength of a check on the Fifth National Bank for $360, signed "Christian Schwarz." He was sent to the State Prison for one year.

Robert Lawrence pleaded guilty of an attempt at grand larceny. On the 5th inst. he stole from Daniel A. Kile, of No. 281 Canal-street, a box containing straw hats, of the value of $100. He was sentenced to the State Prison for one year.

SENT TO THE PENITENTIARY.

Harry Adams pleaded guilty of petit larceny, having on the 27th of March stolen from Daniel W. Berrian, of No. 263 Pearl-street, brushes of the value of $25. He was sentenced to the Penitentiary for six months.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE.

Patrick Kennedy pleaded guilty of assault and battery. On the 19th of February John Ashley, of No. 8 Elizabeth-street, was stabbed in the left side with a knife by the prisoner.

Catharine Manning pleaded guilty of an attempt to commit grand larceny. On the 20th March she stole from Margaret McGuire clothing of the value of $50.

Wm. Douglass, indicted for an attempt at larceny, was tried and convicted. On the 29th of March he stole from John Lowe, No. 242 East Thirteenth-street, a quantity of surgical instruments of the value of $900.

Mr. A. Oakey Hall, District-Attorney, appearing for the people.

DOMESTIC ITEMS.

Lowell, Mass., appropriates $320,000 for its municipal expenses the ensuing year, $9,000 less than last year. The increase in the State tax more than counterbalances the decrease.

The people of Texas say Gen. Sheridan is shortly to inspect thoroughly the frontier posts of that State, and they hope he will then send a strong expedition against the Indians.

The colored schools in Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va., have 2,000 attendants. At Fortress Monroe the number of scholars is 1,100, and at Yorktown 324.

One hundred thousand bushels of potatoes have been sold in Belfast, Me., in the past season by farmers in the vicinity, at an average price of 48 cents.

The Mayor of Cleveland, Ohio, in his inaugural, advocated the repeal of the city ordinance which restrains the sale of intoxicating liquor on Sunday.

Maine papers deny that there are only twenty vessels building in that State, and say that there are some two hundred to be launched this season.

A. Priest, by name, not by calling, of Ann Arbor, Mich., has obtained a verdict for $100 damages against a neighbor for slander.

The cotton factory at Augusta, Me., is running again under the direction of its new owners, the Sprague Manufacturing Company.

A wild lynx, five feet eight inches in length from fore-paw to heel, was shot in the streets of Hamilton, C. W., on the 8th inst.

A new Wesleyan Female College, to cost $125,000, is being erected in Cincinnati by the Methodists of that city.

Steamers made the trip from Detroit to Cleveland and Port Huron, for the first time this season, on the 8th.

The total amount of loss by fire in Chicago last year was $2,457,673, on which was $1,643,645 insurance.

The citizens of Detroit, Mich., are agitated by the question of the rights of negroes in the public schools.

At Amherst College, evening prayers, which were dispensed with last Summer, have been resumed.

The Legislature of Wisconsin adjourned sine die on the 11th inst. The Republican papers generally allude to the resolution submitting to the popular vote the question of female suffrage as more of a joke than anything else. One paper, published at the State capital, says it was passed more in a spirit of pleasantry, and through complaisance toward a member of the Assembly, who made it his pet hobby, than in compliance with any popular demand for the measure.

Decrease in circulation [illegible]

The following is a revised list of the Bank Capital represented in the Weekly Statement from the Clearing-house, to which we add the National Banks reporting their deposits weekly:

[illegible]

The decrease in the Loans at Bank on the present return is nearly four and a half millions, chiefly, it is believed, in Government 7.30 ℘ cents, of which the Treasury was a large buyer last week, both for Cash and in exchange for 5-20s. The decrease in Deposits is one million, while the Banks gain $1,030,000 in Greenbacks and $717,000 in Gold Notes. The present week opens on a steady and rather easier Money market, on the basis of 5@6 ℘ cent. on Government security, and 6@7 ℘ cent. on approved general collateral, on call. The rates on first-class Merchant paper of short date are 7 ℘ cent. at Bank and 7@8 ℘ cent. on the Street. There is not a large offering of strictly prime names.

The War rumors from Europe being pretty well quieted by the later Cable telegrams, the excitement in the Gold Room and Foreign Exchange market has subsided, and there were sellers of Gold this forenoon at a decline of 1 ℘ cent. from the price of Saturday, and of 3¾ ℘ cent. from the top rate of last week. The sales were at 135@134⅞@135⅛ ℘ cent. Standard Bills on London fell to 109⅛@109¼ ℘ cent.

The California steamer arrived last night, and delivered to-day $1,146,584 in Gold and Silver Coin and Bars, of which half a million came to the Treasury Office by way of transfer from the San Francisco Customs receipts.

The Treasury Office received to-day $307,000 in Gold for Customs, and purchased or funded about $500,000 United States 7.30 ℘ cents.

The Public Funds of the United States were nearly all active to-day, and generally at the full prices of Saturday. There was an advance of ⅛@¼ ℘ cent. on the 5-20s of 1864.

The Railway speculation opened steady in the forenoon, but weakened as the business of the day progressed, especially on Erie Shares, which from 57⅛ fell off to 55⅝ ℘ cent., and on New-York Central, which was 1@1½ ℘ cent. lower than on the average sales of Saturday. The Western Stocks sympathized, in some measure, with the adverse turn in Erie and Central, although these fluctuations caused a very large business at the regular and open Boards, and also in the Long Room of the Stock Exchange. As the decline since Friday and Saturday results from no purpose to sell Cash Stock, and no want of Money among the Brokers, on easy terms, it is not likely to last any longer than the bearish turn in the early part of last week, if so long. The final settlement of the New-York Central Bill at Albany, either way, will relieve the market from a prominent cause of suspense. The Pacific-Mail Shares fell off to 124 ℘ cent. to-day. The other Miscellaneous Stocks were comparatively steady.

At 5 o'clock the following quotations were made, as compared with Saturday night. The Foreign Exchanges dull, and the Gold Room weak. Money worked easy to the Brokers to the close of the day. The Public Funds steady at the close. The Railway market very unsettled, and the quotations fluctuating somewhat violently. A short sale of 9,000 shares of Reading was made at 99 ℘ cent., seller 60 days, this Afternoon, and taken for Philadelphia account.

The Capital Stock of the Hudson River Company, under the recent vote of the proprietary, was this day doubled in amount; that is, increased from $7,000,000 to $14,000,000, and 46 ℘ cent. on the new Scrip marked off as representing the surplus value of the property over the original Capital, previous to the purchase of St. John's Park and other improvements in progress or contemplation, and 54 ℘ cent. paid up in cash. The entire enlarged Capital is now to be dealt in as full stock. The dealings to-day were opened on this basis. The bids were 90@93@92½ @ cent., but no sales took place this forenoon. The bidding will have to be advanced to par to induce any considerable sales, as the Messrs. VANDERBILT mean by practical good management to make the enlarged Capital of $14,000,000 a full eight per cent. investment from the start, besides paying 7 ℘ cent. on $6,000,000 Funded Debt.

The stock of the Cleveland and Toledo Company was sold Ex-Dividend of six ℘ cent. half-yearly to-day. This is probably the last dividend the majority of the present Board of Directors will be permitted to prescribe. They will go out of office in June and give place to a different New-York party in the management, who, in connection with the Western Directors, will thereafter divide the net earnings without reference to the amount of the stock which they happen individually to have at the time.

The following is a statement of the approximate earnings of the Fort Wayne Company during the month of March ult, compared with the same period of the year 1866:

The amount of notes in circulation is £23,[illegible], being an increase of £[illegible]; and the stock of bullion in both departments is £19,[illegible], showing an increase of £[illegible] when compared with the preceding return.

The prospects of the Cumberland Coal Trade are thus referred to by the Cumberland (Md.) Civilian:

"The canal is in excellent order throughout its entire length, from Cumberland to Alexandria. The [illegible] have been put in thorough repair, and the passage of boats over it has proved that it is in better condition than for many years past. If all other things are favorable, the amount of coal transported this season through this channel will exceed that of any previous year. Since the opening of navigation, ninety boats have left this port for Georgetown and Alexandria."

The Stockholders in the Michigan Southern Road who favor a change in the present Direction are requested, if they have not already done so, to leave their proxies and instructions with Mr. JOHN B. TREVOR, of TREVOR & COLGATE, No. 45 Wall-street, or Mr. H. DUNKER, over the Banking Rooms of Messrs. DUNCAN, SHERMAN & Co. The annual meeting for election takes place at Toledo, Ohio, on Wednesday of next week.

A dispatch from Indianapolis, dated April 12, to the Cincinnati Gazette, says:

"The Board of State Debt Sinking Fund Commissioners, composed of the Auditor, Treasurer and Agent of the State, met this morning and ordered that all holders of State stocks be notified that the 2½ ℘ cent. stocks should be presented for redemption on the 1st of July, at the State Agency, New-York. The Board has at its disposal sufficient money to pay about 75 ℘ cent. of the 2½ ℘ cent. stocks, but if, after redeeming all the certificates presented, a balance should remain, it will be applied to the redemption of the 5 ℘ cents. Seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars of war loan 6 ℘ cent. bonds will be redeemed on the 1st of May, being all presented for payment out of $850,000 outstanding."

The Richmond (Va.) Whig, April 13, says:

"The Enquirer calls the attention of the Legislature to an omission in the bill for paying partial interest on the State bonds that is so entirely without reason or justification that we are compelled to conclude it was an inadvertence. Says the Enquirer:

"In connection with the general subject, we call the attention of legislators to an omission in their measures, thus far, which operates a serious and unjust inequality among the public creditors. The General Assembly has authorized the issue of bonds for the unpaid interest due on its obligations. Those bonds, thus issued, bear interest like the rest; but, unlike the rest, no provision has been made for paying interest upon them. If the Legislature intended thus to discredit them they ought not to have been issued. The obligation to honor them is at least equal to that to pay any other bond or its interest."

We hope the Legislature will not fail at once to place these interest bonds on the footing of those embraced in the late act. There is no conceivable ground for discrimination, and it is apparent that great hardship and injustice must result to individuals from allowing any."

We find in the Chicago Tribune, the following letter from the Auditor of the State of Illinois, on the subject now being earnestly discussed in that State, of taxing National Banks:

SPRINGFIELD, April 10, 1867.

To the Editor of the Chicago Tribune:

Your issue of the 6th inst. contains a letter, signed by Hon. B. C. COOK, on the subject of the taxation of National Bank shares, and an editorial on the same subject, reviewing the letter and commenting on the failure of the General Assembly to provide needed legislation as to the taxing such shares in this State, at the same time propounding several questions touching the reasons why such legislation was not effected.

As one of these questions is specifically directed to myself, I assume it to be asked in good faith, with the expectation of a reply, and I conclude you will accord me the privilege of your columns for that purpose.

It is asked, "Why was not this subject brought before the Legislature? Can the Auditor of Public Accounts throw any light on the subject? Can the Governor inform the people whether the Legislature was advised of the necessity of this important legislation?"

I have respectfully to state, for the information of the public, that this important subject was brought before the Legislature, as will be seen by the report of the Auditor, submitted to that body, in which, after giving a history of the litigation in our own Courts in the case of BRADLEY et al. vs. The People—referred to by Mr. COOK, in which case the decision quoted by him was rendered—it was suggested by the Auditor, "with reference to the event of the suit (then pending in the Supreme Court of the United States) resulting adversely to the State, that such modification of our statute concerning the taxation of State Banks be made as will bring the same fully and unquestionably within all the requirements of the law of Congress concerning the taxation of National Banks."

This suggestion was made, on my part, more with a view of abundant caution than from a belief of the real necessity of additional legislation, for, as anyone can see from an examination of the Bank and Revenue Laws of Illinois, notwithstanding the dictum of His Honor Justice NELSON, the law of this State and that of New-York, under which the "Van Allen case" arose, are by no means identical. The then law of New-York taxed the banks of the State on their capital, whilst in this State they are taxed on their capital stock and surplus funds, or reserved profits. It was sought in the "Bradley case" to tax the shares of the capital stock in the hands of owners, under the belief, on the part of the Auditor, that it was in full conformity with the laws of Congress and of the State so to do, and the Supreme Court of this State, with a full knowledge of the "Van Allen case" and the decision thereon, unanimously held the Illinois statute to be sufficient, and sustained the taxation. When the case was carried from the Supreme Court of this State to that of the United States, I employed one of the ablest members of the Illinois Bar to defend the suit on behalf of the State, and, after he had, with great care, minutely examined the full bearings of the same, I was assured by him that a decision in favor of the State might be relied on. Under such circumstances and with such assurances, one might well be pardoned for relying upon the sufficiency of the State law as it stands, without any suggestions of amendment or alteration, and it was only as a precaution against an unlooked-for contingency that the suggestion of amendment was included in my report. I deem it due to His Excellency the Governor to state that the manuscript of my report was submitted to him, and that, he gave it careful consideration, with regard to this and all the subjects included therein; that he expressed to me his full approval of the various suggestions it contained, and, while fully aware of the importance of this subject, yet, as it peculiarly pertained to the official province of the Auditor, and deeming the ground fully covered in my report, he did not consider it requisite to make an additional recommendation on his part.

The first intelligence of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the "Bradley case" was received in the afternoon of Feb. 27, but with no particulars as to the grounds of the decision or the points made by the Court. On consultation with the Governor, the Attorney of the State in this case and myself, it was concluded that, being entirely in the dark as to what amendment our law required, and as the Legislature was to adjourn on the morning of the 28th, it was then impracticable to intelligently prepare the necessary amendment or to obtain its passage.

Mr. COOK seems desirous of relieving the difficulty by Congressional amendment to the National Banking Law, but concludes that "this is evidently impossible." I trust a further examination of the question will convince him that such relief is not impossible; for, as I believe, that is the true remedy in the case. The published debates in Congress show it to have been the intention to render the national banks subject to State taxation, and the forty-first section of the National Bank Law carries to the eye a seeming of such liability; but under the rulings of the Supreme Court this proves to be a delusion and a snare.

As Congress has expressly reserved the power to alter, amend, or even repeal the act, it may well be asked why it is impossible for Congress to remedy the evils arising under the delusive promises of this law. It seems to me that a few honest words in lieu of the present provision of the act would end the difficulty. Let it provide that the capital stock, or shares of the same, may be taxed under the laws of the States where such banks are located, in the same manner, at the same or no greater rate than the capital stock or shares of banks authorized by the laws of such States, or, in case that no banks are authorized by the laws of the State in which any such bank is located, then at the same or no greater rate than is assessed against other moneyed capital in the same locality under the laws of such State; with the proviso that if the banks are taxed directly on capital stock in the aggregate, then the shares in the hands of individuals shall be exempt, and vice versa. With such an amendment to the National Bank Law, I fully believe that the whole difficulty would be at an end.

O. H. MINER, Auditor.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF INTERNAL REVENUE,
WASHINGTON, March 28, 1867.

SIR: In answer to your letter of the 25th inst., relative to the changes made by the act of March 2, with regard to the tax on clothing, &c., I have to say that these changes are made with a view to reduction of taxation in all cases. This reduction is provided for in two ways, (1) by a lower rate on the articles taxed, and (2) by exempting some articles altogether.

As the law now stands, the following rates are imposed:

1. On hats, caps, bonnets and hoods of all descriptions, two per cent. ad valorem.

There are no exceptions made to this rate on account of the kind of material used, or the mode of making the same, whether by sewing, weaving, knitting, braiding or felting.

2. On clothing or articles of dress for the wear of men, women or children, made by weaving, knitting or felting, from wool, or of which wool is the chief component material, or the component material of chief value, the tax is two and one-half (2½) per cent. ad valorem.

3. On clothing, or articles of dress, &c., made by weaving, knitting, or felting, from materials other than wool, or of which wool is not the chief component material, or not the component material of chief value, the tax is five (5) per cent. ad valorem.

4. On clothing, or articles of wearing apparel manufactured or produced from India-rubber, gutta-percha, or from fur, or fur skins, dressed with the fur on, the tax is five (5) per cent., except articles made of fur, the value of which does not exceed twenty dollars ($20), in which case the tax is two per cent.

5. On gloves, mittens and moccasins, the tax is two, two and one-half, or five per cent. ad valorem, according to the material of which they are made, and the mode of making them.

6. Clothing or articles of dress not specially enumerated, made by sewing, for the wear of men, women or children, from cloths or fabrics on which a tax or duty has been paid, are exempt.

IV. In my opinion the act of March 2, 1867, does not repeal any of the provisions under those clauses of the [illegible] section, relating to articles of clothing, [illegible], gloves, mittens, hats, caps, bonnets, &c.; therefore, when hats, caps, bonnets, and [illegible] are made by a milliner or dressmaker, they are exempt. The amendatory act makes no change in this respect.

Yours respectfully,
E. A. ROLLINS, Commissioner.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF INTERNAL REVENUE,

SIR: In your letter of the 29th ultimo you state that a manufacturer of candies in your city purchased some high-priced candies, which had become unsalable, and were worked over again with some low-priced candies, and inquire whether he should be assessed upon the number of pounds worked over.

In reply I have to say that when a party takes unsalable candy and manufactures, mixing with other candies, the product should, in my opinion, be held liable for taxation. Yours respectfully,

THOMAS HARLAND, Deputy Commissioner.

AUSTIN H. BROWN, Collector Sixth District, Indianapolis, Ind.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The writer of the Tribune appears to have a knowledge of the future as well as of the past, as he gives the exact earnings of the C. and T. Railroad up to the 1st of May next, to a cent, as well as the expenses. Will he be kind enough to give us the earnings and expenses of the six months ending the 1st of October last, when the present managers, who then were large owners of the stock, and who paid, as they then declared, eight per cent. out of the net earning for said six months? And will he also give the stockholders information of what the item, "other expenses," consists of? The reported (or guessed at) gross earnings are perfectly satisfactory to the stockholders, and if the present Directors cannot save 40 per cent. of the gross receipts, perhaps men may be found at the June election who can.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

NEW BIRTH OF PRINTING.—THE MOST REMARKABLE PIECE OF PRINTING EVER DONE.—TYPE SET BY SUNLIGHT!—AN APPROPRIATE TRIBUTE TO CYRUS W. FIELD. INAUGURATED ON THE SEVENTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY DAY OF BEN. FRANKLIN'S DEATH.

THE AMERICAN PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHIC COMPANY have now ready, and will publish on WEDNESDAY, April 17, a magnificent specimen of workmanship, which they offer to the public not only as an example of the perfection to which their new and beautiful process of printing has been brought, but also as something which every patriotic citizen, and every appreciator of art, will be glad to possess on its own account. This is a splendid piece of CALIGRAPHY, copied by the AMERICAN PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHIC COMPANY, from the original by Prof. DAVID DAVIDSON.

It consists of ten lines of script, in which Prof. DAVIDSON has written, with marvelously beautiful minuteness, THE ENTIRE SPEECH OF CYRUS W. FIELD, delivered at the banquet given by the New-York Chamber of Commerce to celebrate the laying of the Atlantic Cable.

This remarkable specimen of pen-work is surrounded by an ornamental border, decorated with a medallion portrait of Mr. FIELD and a picture of the Great Eastern, and upon the margin is given, in six parallel columns of type, the speech which Prof. DAVIDSON has crowded into ten lines. The speech was set in the large-faced minion type, such as is used on the Tribune, and reduced to its present small size to fit the space allotted to it in the border, by means of the photo-lithographic process.

When Prof. DAVIDSON had finished his work he took it to Mr. FIELD for his inspection, and in return received the following note:

NEW-YORK, Dec. 12, 1866.

SIR: Please accept my thanks for your kindness in showing to me your report of my speech made at the banquet on the 15th of November.

I am surprised at the skill which has been displayed in its execution, and remain yours, respectfully,
CYRUS W. FIELD.

Mr. DAVID DAVIDSON, No. 117 East Broadway.

Prof. DAVIDSON has completed within the past thirty years several like wonderful pieces of penmanship, and has in his possession letters from some of the most eminent citizens of the United States testifying their astonishment and admiration at the genius and skill displayed in his work. Up to this time, however, there has been no means at hand to duplicate, in fac simile, by printing, his penmanship, and therefore a few copies of his work are only to be found in some of the Public Libraries and Historical Societies of the world.

THE AMERICAN PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHIC COMPANY do not claim for this specimen of their work any other merit than its perfect fac simile. They have executed, and are daily printing much finer specimens of art. They decided to publish this print because it commemorated a great and important event, is a wonderful piece of penmanship, and is a grateful tribute to CYRUS W. FIELD, whose persevering industry and talent are fully illustrated by the thought and labor required of Prof. DAVIDSON, in order to put into a certain number of words and lines the story of the laying of the Atlantic Cable, as told by Mr. FIELD at the banquet. To get an idea of Prof. DAVIDSON's skill and genius as displayed in this work, the reader must imagine his task to be to take a speech printed in type of the size that Mr. FIELD's letter is printed in, above, and occupying two and one-quarter columns of the Tribune, and in ten lines of script reading thus: "Address of Mr. CYRUS W. FIELD on the occasion of the Banquet tendered him by the Chamber of Commerce of the City of New-York at the Metropolitan Hotel in honor of his connection with the great enterprise of the laying of the Atlantic Cable on the fifteenth of November, 1866," consume every word. This is what Prof. DAVIDSON has done.

Many a one will read this advertisement, headed as it is "New Birth of Printing," who will not know what Photo-Lithographing is, and why it is called a new birth of printing, and therefore it will be well to say that it is called Photo-Lithographic, because the first process is that of photography and the last lithography. The camera engraves and sets the type, as it were, and then by the process discovered by Mr. JOHN W. OSBORNE, the subject, whether a book, or map, or engraving, is transferred to a stone, from which impressions are taken in the ordinary lithographic way. Therefore it is a new birth of printing, and must result in a radical change in the art of printing as applied to reproduction.

THE AMERICAN PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHIC COMPANY will introduce to the public their print of this remarkable piece of penmanship in honor of CYRUS W. FIELD, on Wednesday, April 17, the seventy-seventh anniversary of the day on which the great and good man, and journeyman printer, Benjamin Franklin, died. PRICE ONE DOLLAR PER COPY. To be had at all the print shops. The Trade supplied at the usual discount. Orders addressed to MORRIS B. FARR, Horticulturist Office,
No. 37 Park-row, New-York City, will be attended to.

All letters in regard to work to be executed must be addressed to JOHN W. OSBORNE, care of THOMAS N. ROOKER, N. Y. Tribune.

STEAM.

THE HARRISON BOILER, having had a practical test for more than two years past among nearly every class of enterprise or work employing steam, and to an extent of power varying from 10 to 300 horses, is presented as embracing the following advantages:

It is absolutely free from destructive explosion.

It has no superior in saving fuel.

It is a rapid steam generator, and if required is made its own super-heater without extra apparatus.

It is easily transportable, and may be passed in sections through an ordinary doorway.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Savannah Republican says: "Accounts represent the condition of things in Camden and Bryan Counties as truly alarming; the wildest days of St. Domingo seem to have been reproduced in Southern Georgia. In one county two negroes were sentenced to death for murder, and three other to the Penitentiary. A mob of colored people surrounded the jail, broke open the doors and allowed the prisoners to escape. In another county men were found hanging to the trees within a short distance of the public roads, and had been hanging there for several days."

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company, it is reported, has again bought out the opposition line of steamers with which it was threatened, and once more monopolize the traffic with the Pacific coast. Three steamships had been engaged to run in opposition, and were owned, Rumor says, by the California Bank. The quarrel between the bank and the Pacific Mail Company having been adjusted, the opposition line is withdrawn.

The loss by the burning of Foote, Nash & Co's extensive distilleries and adjoining property in Cincinnati, on Thursday night last, is estimated at $300,000, a very large stock of liquors having been consumed with the building. The insurance upon the entire property destroyed amounted to $251,000, of which $55,000 was taken by New-York companies, $42,000 by Cincinnati companies, $104,000 by foreign companies, and the remainder by New-England companies.

On Friday morning last some burglars entered the Post-office at York, Penn., rolled the heavy safe into the back yard, drilled a hole in it, blew it open with gunpowder, and secured its contents. LOCAL NEWS.

Mr. Alpheus D. Dubois, Principal of Grammar School No. 36, in Ninth-street, near Avenue D, was yesterday assaulted upon the school premises by a ruffian named Joseph Johnston, who attempted to murder him with a club of hickory wood and a slung-shot, after which he robbed him of $2,900 in United States notes, with which the victim had just returned from the hall of the Board of Education to pay his teachers. The desperado was arrested by Officer Cummings. The assistant janitor of the building, George Murray, was also arrested for alleged complicity in the affair. Both of the prisoners were held by Justice Shandley to await the result of the injuries of Mr. Dubois, whose condition last evening was deemed critical. The money was recovered in the pool of blood behind the school door.

The Broadway Bridge was thrown open to the public yesterday. It is yet in an unfinished condition.

The prices for beef cattle and mutton sheep have advanced from ¼c.@½c. ℔ lb. since the markets of last week. Yesterday transactions at the National Drove-yards were lively, sales quick and prices firm for fat animals. The best fat bullocks (extras) brought 18c. ℔ lb., net weight. A few were held at 18½c. ℔ lb. The next best quality of fat cattle brought 16c.@17c. ℔ lb., net weight. Common to fair steers were sold for 14c.@15c. ℔ lb. The demand for fat sheep is active, and there is an upward tendency in prices. The last lots of wooled sheep sold readily at 10c.@10½c. ℔ lb., live weight. Very few, however, were sold for 10½c. Common to good sheared sheep were sold for 7c.@8c. ℔ lb., live weight. The demand was so active that most of the droves were disposed of before the middle of the afternoon. The arrivals of both beef cattle and sheep are moderate, and do not exceed the requirements of the trade. The number of beef cattle at the National yards for the weekly supply is 1,087.

Business was quite moderate in most kinds of produce and merchandise yesterday, the main exceptions having been in instances of wheat, corn, oats and cotton, which were in good demand. The changes in prices were not important. Pork and lard were cheaper. Freights were brisker.

Politics Among the Blacks.

We have given of late a large number of reports of political meetings held in various localities by the blacks of the Southern States. The number of places at which these meetings are held, and the size of the meetings as reported to us, show that the freedmen are everywhere taking a keen interest in political affairs, and are preparing themselves for their new duties as American citizens. The interest is evidently deepest in Tennessee; but only a short distance behind the freedmen of that State are those of Virginia, the Carolinas, and the Southern States. In a large number of cases these meetings are addressed by freedmen, and in others by white speakers; sometimes by Radical and at other times by Conservative Republicans; and we have even noticed accounts of several meetings gotten up in the Democratic interest, and at which the doctrines of Jefferson were inculcated into those whose enfranchisement Jefferson predicted half a century ago.

The immediate cause of all this political effervescence among the Southern blacks is the prospect of their first exercise of political privileges, under the "Act for the more Efficient Government of the Rebel States." They are guaranteed an influence, in proportion to their numerical power, in the formation of the organic laws which establish permanently the rights of all, and in all the legislation on all those public questions which affect the interests of all classes of citizens. No higher duty can be imposed on man. For its proper performance, are required at once the best conceptions of the highest intellects and the common sense that appertains to mankind as a whole. If ignorance or foolishness control the work, its influence will be fatal, and will remain long after the work itself has passed away. Our Democratic Government is based on the principle that all men are possessed of the capacity of taking part in the establishment of organic political law. The limitations to the working of this principle in the Northern States are but few, and do not weaken but rather strengthen it, in the long run. In abolishing the limitations heretofore put upon it in the Southern States, Congress, while unquestionably carrying out the fundamental theory of our politics, has at the same time put this theory to its very severest test. What will result from the test, cannot be told until it is fully tried.

The innumerable political discussions before the freedmen, and by the freedmen, which are now in progress, are at all events putting them in the way of learning their first lessons in those political doctrines which have brought about such liberal results for the white race. They are being taught the alphabet of politics to-day in preparation for the mastery of politics which they are required to display to-morrow. They are learning of the existence of an art in which they must at once become professors. If something like confusion should appear at first, it would not be astonishing; but we should expect that it would diminish with each successive day. All that we who have given the opportunity for this advance, can ask, is that the newly enfranchised give evidence of something like a capacity to rise to the apprehension of the few fundamental ideas that are essential to the continuance of a Constitutional Republican Government. Loyalty is undoubtedly one of these; but loyalty must understand itself, and must at the same time go hand in hand with other political virtues. In reading the speeches delivered at these meetings we are compelled in almost every case to lament that the first lessons of the blacks in politics are given by men of so little judgment, so great ignorance, and such bitter passions. We can only hope that the native good sense of the negroes will lead them to wiser action than their teachers urge upon them.

The interest of the Southern negro in politics furnishes another striking illustration of the ignorance of negro character on the part of those who have claimed to know most about the negro race. We have always been told that the enfranchised negroes could not be induced to take any interest in politics, and that, if the right of voting were conferred upon them, they would regard it with indolent contempt. At present, however, the negro part of the Southern population seems to take more interest in political affairs than any other class of the community. We should like to see the whites taking an equally lively interest.

The South and the Reconstruction Law —Can the United States be Sued?

Even in the very narrow limitations to which it has necessarily been subjected, the discussion before the Supreme Court on the application for an injunction against the President, to restrain him from enforcing the Reconstruction Bill, involved questions of the utmost importance and interest. The application was made in behalf of the State of Mississippi for leave to file a bill for this purpose against the President and Gen. Ord. The Attorney-General opposed the motion on the ground that the Court ought not to entertain such a proceeding against the President. Judge Sharkey, who presented the application, had made up his mind so clearly on this question that when he heard the point made he at once informed the Attorney-General that he did not think the objection "amounted to anything at all; for we expect," said he, "to show that the President of the United States is just as amenable to the process of this Court as any other man in the United States." We suspect that before the Attorney-General had finished his argument, some ideas had penetrated Sharkey's mind on this point which had not entered it before.

The gist of the Attorney-General's argument was, that if the Supreme Court could entertain such a proceeding against the President, it must have the power to enforce its decree by imprisoning him if he did not obey it, which would amount to deposing him; whereas, impeachment is the only mode provided by the Constitution for the removal of the Executive; and moreover, that the proceeding was really one against the United States, which could not be sued except by its own consent.

Mr. R. J. Walker, in answer, undertook to show both that the United States could be sued by a State before the Supreme Court, and that this suit against the President was not a suit against the United States. If the Attorney-General had presented a rejoinder, we should, doubtless, have had both of these positions most thoroughly overthrown. For to us the answer is obvious, especially to the first. Mr. Walker's argument appears to amount to this: "By the Constitution the judicial power of the United States is declared to extend to controversies to which the United States shall be a party, besides other cases. Of these cases the Supreme Court is declared to have original jurisdiction in cases 'in which a State shall be a party.' Therefore the United States may be, by virtue of this clause of the Constitution, a party to a suit—defendant or plaintiff either—or, in other words, the United States may be sued. It granted its consent that it should be sued when it adopted that clause of the Constitution; and when a State is a party, the Supreme Court has original jurisdiction to entertain the suit."

The difficulty, as it seems to us, with this argument is, that it proves too much. If that clause of the Constitution is to be taken as giving the consent of the Government to be sued, it must be taken to be a general consent, without any limitation whatever. It cannot be held to have been giving consent of the Government to be sued in any suit which should be commenced in favor of one man rather than another, or of a corporation or a State rather than of an individual, for the language is simply "controversies to which the United States shall be a party." If this clause gives authority for the State of Mississippi to bring the United States before the Federal Courts, it gives authority to any citizen to do the same thing in any controversy which he has with the Government.

But if anything is well settled in the law, it is that the Government cannot be sued before the Federal Courts, unless it has given its consent to the suit otherwise than by the adoption of this clause of the Constitution. The question has been repeatedly before the Courts, and we venture to say that this is the first time that any one has thought of drawing any argument for the opposite claim from that clause of the Constitution. We do not apprehend that the argument which has been now drawn will be felt to have had any force.

It is plain that that clause only confines to the Federal Courts jurisdiction over controversies to which the United States shall be a party, without having any reference at all to how they shall become a party. If they are to bring a suit, it must be brought in the Federal Courts; or if they consent to be sued, it shall be in the Federal Courts; but certainly there is not to be found in those words any consent, given in advance, that they may be sued whenever any one else thinks proper. Hitherto the Government alone has determined for itself how and where and when it would be sued. We apprehend it will continue to be the only one to determine the question.

The objection which the Attorney-General raised to the bill in the case of the application from Mississippi did not apply to the one from Georgia, which was directed against Secretary Stanton, Gen. Grant and Gen. Pope, and not against the President. Subordinate officers of the Government may be brought before the Courts, and on this account the application from Georgia was yesterday granted and the one from Mississippi refused. The further discussion of the points involved in the Georgia application, and the decision of the Court with regard to them, will be looked for with a degree of interest not wholly unmixed with anxiety. For while, practically speaking, the final issue as between the Southern States and Congress cannot be essentially changed by the dicta of counsel or judges, the immediate effect of the mere appearance of judicial interposition adverse to the law may operate disastrously. Apart from these proceedings, the South is evidently preparing to comply in good faith with the requirements of the reconstruction law, under the impression that there is no escape from the obligations it imposes. Hence the hope—founded upon decisions in cases more or less analogous—that the Georgia case will not be permitted to proceed beyond the point which tests the jurisdiction of the Court in the premises. The admission of the right of Georgia to file the bill in no manner anticipates the decision yet to be rendered.

A Splendid Conception—How to Stop Corruption.

Our neighbor of the Tribune is acknowledged to be a political genius of the first water. His fertility in expedients is unbounded. Given the thing to be done, and he may be relied on for the means of doing it. No political or social problem is too high for his solution, and nothing is too small for his attention.

We are not at all surprised, therefore, to find in his columns a mode of putting an end, at once and forever, to bribery and corruption in our halls of legislation. This is a matter which just now attracts considerable public notice. The fact of the existence of such corruption is notorious and undisputed. Nobody pretends for a moment to doubt that members of the Legislature regularly sell their votes for money,—that many seek that position for the purpose of personal profit by such sales,—and that no bill, involving money in any way, can be passed except by bribing members to vote for it.

This is the evil; how to stop it is the problem. No new laws are wanted; by existing laws the sale of a vote is a crime punishable by imprisonment. How to detect the crime—how to convict the criminal—is the one thing needful. If that could be accomplished, the evil would very speedily be removed, for the punishment is ample, and one or two instances of its infliction would operate as a wholesome preventive forever after.

It is just at this point that the Tribune comes in with its plan:

> "We suggest, therefore, that some member of either House shall at once demand such a scrutiny, and that the Committee thereupon appointed shall require the members severally to state whether they have or have not been solicited to report or not report, to vote for or against, any bill or other proposition, with an intimation that they might derive personal profit or advantage from such report or vote. Let each member in succession be required to state on oath all he knows that seems calculated to cast light on this subject, and let all others who could probably elucidate it be summoned to do likewise. The people want to know the truth in the premises; and they have a right to know it. Before any vote shall be taken with intent to override one of the Governor's vetoes, let this matter be probed to the core. Such a searching inquiry is due to a public justly sensitive as to the reputation of its rulers, and not less to the good name of the many thoroughly upright and worthy members of the Legislature itself."

There you have it! Let each member be called on to "state" under oath, whether he has been bribed or not;—whether he has been guilty of a crime which would send him to the State Prison;—whether anybody has tried to bribe him,—if so, who, when and how? This is what the Tribune calls a "searching inquiry." This is "probing the matter to the core!"

Did it never occur to our unsophisticated friend that a man who will take a bribe will be very likely to tell a lie about it? The members who sell their votes are not usually found among the most conscientiously veracious classes of society; nor are they usually inclined to make of themselves martyrs to their faith and practice. They may be willing to fill their pockets, but they do not like to go to Sing Sing for it. We do not believe the Tribune's "searching scrutiny" would elicit any very important or valuable information. We doubt whether more than seventy or eighty members would come forward, in response to the "call," and inform the Committee how much they got for their votes, and what particular bills were thus carried or defeated by them. The "light" which would probably be cast on this subject by such a process would, we are inclined to think, scarcely be equal to that of the sun at noonday.

The Tribune begins at the wrong end. It seeks to inculpate the lobby, and to screen the members involved in this wholesale game of bribery and corruption. It is not half so important to the public to learn who bribes, as it is to know who is bribed. The latter are the men who barter public rights, sacrifice public interests, degrade the public honor, defraud individuals, disgrace the State and render legislation only another name for robbery and public plunder. The lobby are only the brokers—the agents in this traffic. Their calling is not especially honorable, but it cannot compare in turpitude and disgrace with that of the perjured law-makers who sell their consciences and their oaths for whatever price they will command.

Now we suggest that the Tribune's plan be reversed. Let the lobby-men, or the black-mailed suitors for justice at the doors of the Legislature, be allowed and invited to tell what they know about this business. Let the Legislature enact a law relieving them from the penalties they now incur by telling what members they have been compelled to bribe, in order to get the faintest show of security for their property and their rights. Encourage them, invite them, reward them, if need be, for revealing the secrets of this dismal traffic. Throw open the door to evidence, and then we can make a beginning toward reform in this matter.

We submit to the Tribune whether this method is not more practical, and likely to be attended with better results, than the scheme of voluntary confession which it has proposed.

MINOR TOPICS.

The Freedmen's Union Commission, for which pecuniary and other aid is constantly solicited, is doing its share of the good work which brings North and South together by mutual attraction, and which will do more real reconstruction than armies of legislators can accomplish. The physical needs and sufferings of the Southern people are every day becoming more apparent, and so pressing and universal are the troubles in Gen. Sickles' district, that that commander has issued orders restraining the enforcement of executions under judgement of debt, and in some excepted cases making provision for retention of certain proportions of property, so that men's families may not be left absolutely desolate. The various Southern Aid Commissions are endeavoring to relieve some of this pressing physical want. The Freedman's Aid Commission, under the guidance of Major-Gen. Howard, has taken up and prosecuted with much success the cause of popular education in the South, and works avowedly upon an "unsectarian, impartial and unpartisan" plan to spread intelligence among the people, white and black, of all sorts, sexes, ages and conditions. During the year ending July, 1866, about $700,000 were expended in supporting teachers, more than one-third of whom were sustained by the New-York branch of this Commission. Orphan asylums, industrial schools, Sunday-schools and common schools come within the scope of their efforts, and it is to be hoped that these helpers of the inner as well as those of the outer man in the destitute South may meet with generous and just aid from all sides.

The Republican Congressional Committee, which holds permanent session in Washington, is giving special attention to the organization of the party in the Southern States with a view to coming elections. Books have been opened in which a record is made of the men in every locality who favor the extreme views of the party as represented in Congress, and steps are taken to organize everywhere energetic, active and zealous committees,—so that, as the Washington Chronicle remarks, long before the next Presidential election "there will scarcely be a hamlet in the South that will not be placed in direct and daily communication with the Committee." Documents are also distributed, not only on the subject of reconstruction and in support of the policy and action of Congress, but in favor of the high protective views of the Pennsylvania manufacturers. Arrangements are also to be made for lectures, speeches, pamphlets and other forms of appeal to the people in all parts of the South, and by speakers and writers of all classes. A great deal of money is needed for the prosecution of this gigantic labor, for which the Committee look to the party throughout the North.

It seems that John E. Surratt is treated very differently from his mother and those who were tried with her for complicity in the same crime. He has the full liberty of the corridors of the prison, is visited by his sister every day, and is subjected to no rigor not absolutely required for his safety. His mother was brought into Court daily handcuffed, and neither she nor any of those arrested at the same time were allowed any kind of freedom during their confinement. This difference in their treatment is doubtless due to the different tone of public sentiment which prevails now from that which prevailed then. While the crime is held in the same abhorrence, there is not the same feverish eagerness for vengeance which then prevailed. There is also a reaction in the public mind from the extreme rigor which then sanctioned, if it did require, the trial of the assassins and their alleged accomplices, by a military commission instead of the civil tribunals of the land. Public opinion would not now tolerate the trial of Surratt by martial law. He will have, what was denied his mother, the full benefit of all the provisions which the common law makes for the rights of persons accused even of the highest crimes.

The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser is a very good paper, but it is falling into bad habits. Is it not slightly troubled with "kleptomania?" We ask for information.

The Cleveland (Ohio) Herald contains a very timely protest against the systematic slanders and detraction with which Washington correspondents of certain Republican newspapers visit every public man who does not act in obedience to their political prejudices and exactions. It speaks of the evil as a "growing" one. It is already pretty well grown. It is even now one of the greatest abuses and impositions of the many such which have the national capital as their head. It has become impossible to obtain from the Washington correspondents of many of the leading Republican journals of the country anything like a clear, just and impartial statement of what is done or said by public men in Congress or elsewhere. They do not even pretend or attempt to give such reports. They distort everything, openly and shamelessly, to suit their own purposes and to gratify their personal or political resentments. The Western Republican Press suffers seriously from this cause, as do several of our Eastern journals. The Washington column of the Tribune has been for a year or two past conspicuously and notoriously devoted to this work of personal and partisan calumny. There are a good many departments of public action in which thorough reform is needed, but in none is it more imperative than in the reporters' galleries in Washington.

The financial troubles in England which last year culminated in a "crisis," do not appear to be over yet. Private advices give a gloomy picture of the present state of things there and the general feeling is that, putting improvement out of the question, no one can see when matters will cease to grow worse. The gigantic railway system of debenture bonds, which is one of the controlling interests in the market, is sadly rotten. That immense concern, the Great Western, with an annual revenue of two millions sterling, is unable to pay one sixpence dividend on its debentures due at the end of the year, or to get a penny's credit; and other roads are in a worse state, not paying their working expenses. The distrust seems to be wide-spread in connection with everything in the shape of stock companies, whether of railways, mines or anything else; and shares by the ship-load, some of them very good too, may be had for as many shillings as they once cost pounds. There is a superabundance of money, the rates of interest are extraordinarily low, but discount is unattainable except upon security enough to satisfy the most extortionate usurer. This is simply the result of an universal distrust and lack of confidence arising from the betrayal of the public trust by leading financiers. They are in deep water, and have themselves to thank for it.

Whatever be the upshot of the attempt to array the Supreme Court in opposition to the reconstruction legislation of Congress, the good faith of President Johnson has been conclusively vindicated. Attorney-General Stanbery's argument in reply to the Mississippi application leaves no room for doubt or misrepresentation. It has demonstrated, not only that the President is not in league with the Southern opponents of the law, but that he is intent upon its literal and immediate enforcement, and will disregard all interference with his authority and its attendant duties. His opposition to the enactment ceased with the exercise of his veto power. That having been overcome, he knows only one duty, which is to execute the law without reference to his own estimate of its provisions. The announcement will be doubly serviceable. It vindicates the President on an important point from the aspersions of the eager advocates of impeachment; and it will teach Southern malcontents the futility of at least one hope on which they have confidently relied.

By 10,000 majority Maryland has decided in favor of holding a Convention to revise the Constitution of the State; a majority large enough to cover the extremists who refused to vote, and to show that the Legislature, in authorizing the election, acted conformably to the popular will. Nevertheless, the threat is renewed, that the Radicals, defeated at the polls, will invoke the interference of Congress, because, as they allege, the Convention "will certainly be ruled" in a direction opposed to their wishes and party interests. Under what pretence of right Congress may be asked to help them, their newspaper friends have not ventured to explain. We can conceive of no reason applicable to Maryland that would not be equally applicable to New-York. If Congress may be appealed to, to disfranchise Copperheads and to enfranchise colored citizens in Maryland, it may also be required to revise and overrule the action of our own Convention, should its doings fall short of Radical expectations. The pretension is too monstrous to be seriously argued, at least until it take other shape than newspaper talk.

The Philadelphia Age reproduces the secession views of our neighbor, the Tribune, as promulgated in December, 1860, by way of showing that the Copperheads were not alone in the sympathy they extended to the cause for which the South contended. Passages like this, culled by the Age from the Tribune of that date, have an odd significance, seeing that the journal which printed them now proposes to read out of the Republican ranks every man who refuses to pronounce its shibboleth:

> "Whenever a portion of this Union, large enough to form an independent, self-subsisting nation, shall see fit to say authentically to the residue, 'We want to get away from you,' we shall say, and we trust self-respect, if not regard for the principle of self-government, will constrain the residue of the American people to say, Go!"

But though these sayings of the Tribune press heavily upon its record for Unionism and consistency, we do not very clearly see how they vindicate Ex-President Buchanan and the Copperheads.

The Evening Post urges the people to act independently of party lines in the election for delegates to the Constitutional Convention. It advises voters to "select carefully from the two tickets presented for their favor the best men, and vote only for these, without regard to the source of their nomination." It also suggests "meetings of citizens, independent of party, to select the best men from the two tickets, with others of ability who have not been nominated by either party, and present a ticket so made up to the people for their suffrages." This is noteworthy language of the Post, and indicates something like a protest against the corruption and venality of the times, whichever party may be benefited by them.

The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, in accordance with a recent resolution, will soon visit the territory, not west, as the telegraph has it, but south of Kansas, with a view of selecting a location for the "Indians of that State, and their prompt removal thither." This is now made an absolute necessity by the growth of the white population of Kansas and their encroachments upon the Indian domains. We suppose, however, some of the more highly-civilized Indians, located as farmers near the Kansas River, will be permitted to retain their farms and their property, if they choose to do so. The Indian country south of Kansas and west of Arkansas is one of the most fertile and desirable regions in the United States. It has an Indian population of 65,000, besides a considerable number of negroes, formerly slaves, but now free. Some of these tribes, such as the Cherokees, are very highly civilized, and possess a fine educational system. The Kansas Indians who are to be removed, do not probably number more than four thousand, and they will find things far better for them among their brethren, where whites cannot encroach, than in localities where they have no rights which white men are bound to respect.

The corruption and charges of corruption in the State Legislature appear to excite everybody but the members of the Legislature itself. There is not an important newspaper in the State but has treated the subject with gravity, and in but few instances has party feeling predominated over a regard for public morals. The Union League and various other Republican organizations have taken up the matter, and have denounced with deserved severity the body which tolerates such a state of things as now exists. Mr. Beecher brought the subject into his sermon last Sunday, and referred to the "corruptions of politics, the flagrant venality of legislation," as one of the perilous evils of the times. Said he:

> "The men at Washington and Albany sold their country; they sold their humanity and their honor, and the trusts that were put upon them by their constituents. They were debauchers of the young; they were the traitors; they that lifted the sword were not half so much traitors; they that despoiled the old banner and trod it under foot; they that fired upon the Government of the United States were not so much traitors as were these vermin who were crawling under the foundations and destroying by corruption the vital power of the Government."

These are deserved words; and we imagine that in course of time the members of our Legislature will find that their corruption cannot be condoned by denunciation of the wretched people of the Southern States, or by noisy professions of loyalty.

As the political interests of the South become more defined, and settle into a regular course of advancement, her industrial pursuits will rapidly outstrip them. The great hindrance to material progress, then, since the war, has not been exclusion but uncertainty. Setting aside the politicians, the cry of the people was, "We want to know what is coming." A vigorous start was made in the direction of mining, more particularly for gold, in which metal the States of Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia abound; but the uncertain condition of affairs kept capital away, and without money nothing could be done. Already again this mineral interest is reviving. Besides gold, the most important metal there seems to be copper, which was largely extracted by the Confederate Government during the war from the mines of Tennessee and Virginia. The price of copper being low, and the trade comparatively inactive, renders it hardly a paying enterprise to import that metal from the expensive Pacific coast, and the gate is open for cheap production nearer home.

AFFAIRS AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 15.

THE MISSISSIPPI INJUNCTION CASE.

The Supreme Court to-day promptly rendered its decision in the so-called Mississippi injunction case. The Court sustained the objection of the Attorney-General, and denied the motion of the petitioner, praying for leave to file a bill asking the Court to perpetually enjoin the President, Gen. Grant and Gen. Ord from enforcing the Military Reconstruction Bill, on the ground that the President cannot be made a party to any suit, because he is the Executive officer of the Government, and the Court would have no power to enforce its judgment even if it should grant the petition. At the same time the Court granted leave to the petitioners in the case of the State of Georgia to file their bill, because the President is not impleaded therein, only his subordinates, Gen. Grant, Secretary Stanton and Gen. Pope. The Georgia case will, therefore, be argued on its merits, and bring up the whole question, not only of the jurisdiction of the Court, but of the constitutionality of the law. The counsel for the State, Messrs. Charles O'Conor, J. S. Black and Edgar Cowan, held a consultation to-day and resolved to move on Thursday, the next motion day, for the appointment of an early day for the argument of the case. Attorney-General Stanbery will appear for the Government, and it is generally understood to-day that he will be assisted by other able counsel, with especial reference to the constitutionality of the law, it being popularly supposed that the able Attorney-General has once made a strong argument against it, in the shape of a Presidential veto, the logic of which the counsel for the petitioners will undoubtedly avail themselves.

THE ADJOURNMENT OF THE SENATE.

The Senate, as was expected, finds itself unable to adjourn on Tuesday, and Senator Anthony to-day introduced a resolution postponing the adjournment until Thursday. It certainly will not take place before then, and perhaps not even then, unless necessitated by want of a quorum. Senator Williams left to-night for Oregon via New-York, and Senator Drake leaves for Missouri to-morrow.

THE AUSTRIAN MISSION.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee reached no conclusion on the nomination of Mr. Raymond as Minister to Austria. The only question in the way of Mr. Raymond's confirmation is the desire of the Senate to keep Mr. Motley in that position. If it be established that there is a vacancy in that mission the Senate will confirm any good appointment rather than leave the office open for the President to fill after the adjournment, as it is believed he would.

NOMINATIONS BEFORE THE SENATE.

The Brooklyn appointments had another turn to-day. Wellwood was again sent in for Assessor in the Second District, and Thomas Kinsella, already rejected, for Postmaster. He was again rejected, without even the formality of a reference. Another slate was made up for Philadelphia, not by the President, but by Sam. Randall, and sent in, to be rejected so speedily that it is not worth while to mention their names. Gen. Frank J. Herron was sent in as United States Marshal for Louisiana, and referred to the Judiciary Committee. Franklin's confirmation as Naval Officer is very doubtful.

THE BLOCKADE-RUNNER PETERHOF.

The Supreme Court to-day decided the case of the celebrated blockade-runner, the Peterhof, in favor of the vessel and against the Government. It involves nearly $2,000,000, and the point decided by the Court was that the mouth of the Rio Grande could not be blockaded by our Government; that a blockade of the Texas shore of that river could be enforced, but no vessel ostensibly bound for Matamoras, as was the Peterhof, could be overhauled by our blockaders unless she attempted to land on the Texas shore.

NEGRO CELEBRATION IN WASHINGTON.

The anniversary of the emancipation of the slaves in the District of Columbia will be celebrated here to-morrow with speeches, processions, &c. Ex-Gov. Morton, of Indiana; Hon. B. F. Butler, M. C.; Hon. Judge Kelley, M. C.; Mr. Sayles, J. Bowen, Major-Gen. Howard, Major-Gen. J. A. Logan, John R. Elvans and others, have been invited to make addresses, and, with the exception of Gen. Logan and several others who are not in the city, have accepted.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

Chief-Justice Chase does not enjoy the franking privilege. Persons sending him applications for Registers in Bankruptcy will bear this in mind, and thus save their papers from going to the Dead Letter Office.

The consideration of Col. Capron's nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture was postponed to-day until December next, and Hon. Isaac Newton will therefore rest undisturbed in his office until that time. He has proved himself as successful in political finesse as in raising early vegetables.

Flags have been floating half-mast to-day on all the public buildings and many private residences, in commemoration of the second anniversary of President Lincoln's death.

Gideon H. Hollister was sent to the Senate to-day in nomination for the Havana Consulship.

To the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 15.

TERRITORIAL OFFICERS.

The President to-day sent a message to the Senate inclosing communications from the Secretary of the Interior, the Auditor-General and the Secretary of State. The latter, to whom was also referred the resolution of the 8th inst., requesting the President to inform that body how often the Governors, Secretaries and Judges of the several Territories have been absent from their posts of duty in the Territories since their appointments, &c., says: The Department has no information in regard to the absence of Territorial Judges. In respect to Governors and Secretaries, the Department has no information other than that given in the tables submitted of what periods have been spent in Washington during their absence from the Territories. The leaves of absence mentioned in the tables were in each instance previously granted, except in the last case of Alexander Cummings, Governor of Colorado Territory, which leave was applied for from Denver, and granted after his arrival here. The public necessity for such absences, so far as are known to the Department, appear in the table. No part of the expenses on the trips of the Governors and Secretaries have been charged to the Government. The Attorney-General in his communication says: All absences mentioned therein were in accordance with leaves previously granted on assurances satisfactory to the Attorney-General that the public interest would suffer no damage. It was laid on the table, and ordered to be printed. The Secretary of the Interior says he has no information on the subject.

REMOVAL OF KANSAS INDIANS.

The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs will, after the present session, visit the territory west of Kansas, with a view of selecting a location for the Indians of that State, and their prompt removal thither. The Committee consists of Messrs. Henderson of Missouri, (Chairman,) Morrill of Maine, Ross of Kansas, Corbett of Oregon, Thayer of Nebraska, Doolittle of Wisconsin and Buckalew of Pennsylvania. They expect to leave Lawrence about the 20th May. This action on their part is in accordance with a resolution adopted by the Senate.

THE MISSISSIPPI INJUNCTION CASE.

The Application to File a Bill Praying for an Injunction Denied by the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 15.

In the United States Supreme Court to-day, the Chief Justice delivered the opinion of the Court in the case of the State of Mississippi vs. Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and E. O. C. Ord, on the motion for leave to file a bill as follows:

OPINION.

A motion was made some days since, on behalf of the State of Mississippi, for leave to file a bill in the name of the State, praying this Court perpetually to enjoin and restrain Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, and E. O. C. Ord, General, commanding in the District of Mississippi and Arkansas, from executing or in any manner carrying out certain acts of Congress therein named. The acts referred to are those of March 2 and March 23, 1867, commonly known as the Reconstruction Acts.

The Attorney-General objected to the leave asked for, upon the grounds that no bill which makes the President a defendant, and seeks an injunction against him to restrain the performance of his duties as President, should be allowed to be filed in this Court. This point has been fully argued, and we will now dispose of it. We shall limit our inquiry to the question presented by the objection, without expressing any opinion on the broader issues discussed in argument, whether, in any case, the President of the United States may be required, by the process of this Court, to perform a purely ministerial act required by law, or may be held amenable, in any case, otherwise than by impeachment for crime. The single point which requires consideration is this: Can the President be restrained from carrying into effect an act of Congress alleged to be unconstitutional. It is assumed by the counsel for the State of Mississippi that the President, in the execution of the Reconstruction Acts, is required to perform a mere ministerial duty. In this assumption there is, we think, a compounding of the terms "ministerial" and "executive," which are by no means equivalent in import. A ministerial duty, the performance of which may in proper cases be required of the head of a department, by judicial process, is one in respect to which nothing is left to discretion; it is a simple definite duty, arising under conditions admitted, or proved to exist, or imposed by law. The case of Marbury vs. Madison, Secretary of the Treasury, (1 Cranch, 137,) furnishes an illustration. A citizen had been nominated, confirmed and appointed a Justice of the Peace for the District of Columbia, and his commission had been made out, signed and sealed. Nothing remained to be done except delivery, and the duty of delivery was imposed by law on the Secretary of State. It was held that the performance of this duty might be enforced by mandamus issuing from a Court having jurisdiction. So in the case of Kendall, Postmaster-General, vs. Stockton & Stokes, (12 Peters, 527.) An act of Congress had directed the Postmaster-General to credit Stockton & Stokes with such sums as the Solicitor of the Treasury should find due them, and that officer refused to credit them with certain sums so found due. It was held that the crediting of this money was a mere ministerial duty, the performance of which might be enforced in each of these cases. Nothing was left to discretion; there was no room for the exercise of judgment. The law required the performance of a single specific act, and, that performance, it was held, might be required by mandamus. Very different is the duty of the President in the exercise of the power to see that the laws are faithfully executed, and among those laws the acts named in the bill. By the first of these acts he is required to assign Generals to command in the several military districts, and to detail sufficient military force to enable such officers to discharge their duties under the law. By the Supplementary Act other duties are imposed on the several commanding Generals, and their duties must necessarily be performed under the supervision of the President, as Commander-in-Chief. The duty thus imposed on the President is, in no just sense, ministerial; it is purely executive and political. An attempt on the part of the Judicial Department of the Government to enjoin the performance of such duties by the President might be justly characterized, in the language of Chief-Justice Marshall, as "an absurd and excessive extravagance." It is true that in the instance before us the interposition of the Court is not sought to enforce action by the Executive under constitutional legislation; but to restrain such action under legislation alleged to be unconstitutional. But we are unable to perceive that this circumstance takes the case out of the general principle which forbids judicial interference with the exercise of executive discretion. It was admitted in the argument that the application now made to us is without a precedent, and this is of much weight against it. Had it been supposed at the bar that this Court would in any case interpose to arrest the execution of an unconstitutional act of Congress, it can hardly be doubted that applications with that object would have been heretofore addressed to it; occasions have been infrequent. The constitutionality of the act for the annexation of Texas was vehemently denied. It made important and permanent changes in the relative importance of States and sections, and was by many supposed to be pregnant with disastrous results to large interests in particular States; but no one seems to have thought of an application for an injunction against the execution of the act by the President; and yet it is difficult to perceive upon what principle the application now before us can be allowed, and similar applications in that and other cases could have been denied. The fact that no such application was ever before made in any case indicates the general judgment of the profession that no such application should be entertained. It will hardly be contended that Congress can interpose in any case to restrain the enactment of an unconstitutional law; and yet how can the right to judicial interposition to prevent such an enactment, when the purpose is evident and the execution of that purpose certain, be distinguished in principle from the right to such interposition against the execution of such a law by the President. The Congress is the legislative department of the Government. The President is the executive department. Neither can be restrained in its action by the judicial department, though the acts of both, when performed, are in proper cases subject to its cognizance. The impropriety of such interference will be clearly seen upon consideration of its probable consequences. Suppose the bill filed and the injunction prayed for be allowed. If the President refuse obedience, it is needless to observe that the Court is without power to enforce its process. If, on the other hand, the President complies with the order of the Court and refuses to execute the act of Congress, is it not clear that a collision may occur between the executive and legislative departments of the government? May not the House of Representatives impeach the President for such refusal? And in that case could this Court interpose in behalf of the President thus endangered by compliance with its mandate, and restrain by injunction the Senate of the United States from sitting as a Court of Impeachment? Would the strange spectacle be offered to the public wonder of an attempt by this Court to arrest proceedings in that Court? These questions answer themselves. It is true that a State may file an original bill in this Court, and it may be true in some cases such a bill may be filed against the United States, but we are fully satisfied that this Court has no jurisdiction of a bill to enjoin the President in the performance of his official duties, and that no such bill ought to be received by us. It has been suggested that the bill contains a prayer that if the relief sought cannot be had against Andrew Johnson as President, it may be granted against Andrew Johnson as a citizen of Tennessee, but it is plain that relief against the execution of an act of Congress by Andrew Johnson is relief against its execution by the President. A bill praying an injunction against the execution of an act of Congress by the incumbent of the Presidential office cannot be received, whether it describes him as President or simply as a citizen of a State. The motion for leave to file the bill is therefore denied.

The opinion having been delivered the Chief-Justice announced that the Court would not sit on next Friday, it being Good Friday, and Thursday would be substituted as motion day. He also added, in the case of the State of Georgia against certain officers, the Attorney-General makes no objection to the filing of the bill, and we will therefore grant leave to file that bill.

Mr. Sharkey—If the Court please, the objection to the bill which I attempted to file seems to be that it is an attempt to enjoin the President. The bill is not filed, and I can reform it to suit the views of the Court and present it again.

The Chief-Justice—Leave to file the bill is refused. When another bill is presented it will be considered.

Mr. Sharkey—Do I understand the Court to say the application can be made on Thursday?

The Chief-Justice—On Thursday.

AMUSEMENTS.

Concerts.

A very pleasant musical affair came off on Saturday evening, in the little city of Hoboken,—an offering by the German Club to Mme. Enriqueta Altieri, Mr. Oscar Pfeiffer and Mr. J. B. Poznanski. The elegant assembly-room of the Club was comfortably filled by a critical and aristocratic party, who listened with marked attention to the efforts of these artists and bestowed discriminating applause upon their performances. Mme. Altieri sang "Casta Diva" and Mr. Pfeiffer's arrangement of Godfrey's "Guard Waltz" as they have rarely been heard. The arrangements were under the charge of Mr. Alfred E. Buck. Mme. Altieri and Mr. Pfeiffer may be heard by a larger public on Wednesday, for they announce a concert for that evening to take place at Steinway Hall. Miss Kate McDonald gives a concert at the same Hall on Thursday.

National Academy of Design.

The forty-second annual exhibition of the National Academy of Design opened last evening. A private view in the afternoon enabled invited guests to study the large collection of paintings with facilities that were wanting at the crowded but pleasant reception in the evening, which, as usual, had a social rather than artistic character. Want of space prevents us from entering into detailed criticism this morning, and we can only say that the exhibition on the whole conveys a very favorable impression. The number of pictures is unusually large, reaching nearly six hundred, and though there are few striking ones among them there are also few that are decidedly bad. Landscape and portraiture are, as usual, well represented, and form the most attractive features of the exhibition. In the former class the Pre-Raphaelites are well represented in respect to numbers, and their pictures are all excellently hung. We are sorry that this is all we can say in their favor, every one being just as bad as a false theory of art put in worse practice can make it.

Among the attractions of the present exhibition is Powers' Eve, the original statue executed for Col. Preston, of South Carolina. It has been buried in that State for the last six years, and the opportunity of seeing it will be eagerly embraced by all admirers of the distinguished sculptor.

The Southern Relief Fund—Mr. Jerome's Theatre.

The amateur entertainments which have been given, under the auspices of the Ladies' Society, for the Southern Relief Fund, at Mr. Jerome's private theatre, near Madison-avenue, closed last Saturday evening. The net receipts for the thirteen nights were $12,000. The story is very well told in the following neatly written epilogue, which was delivered at the close of the play:

EPILOGUE.

This is the night on which we say farewell!
The saddest word, as all our hearts will tell,
That ever passes human lips; now let us fly
One moment on the wings of memory,
Let us recall—ah, who remembers not
The pleasant story of this genial spot?
'Tis a vain thing to "summon up a sigh,"
Pursue the phantom of a day gone by,
Recount the moments of a golden hour,
Bring back the fragrance to a faded flower;
Or aim at that which was so hard to hit,
The vanished bubble of prismatic wit!
Yet who can free him from those fatal wiles,
The cherished beauty of remembered smiles!
This joyous moment's ours! and here we stan
Girdling the present with a rosy band.
Yet deem it not weakness, if we yield at last,
And give one tender memory to the past!
But few are present now, but many know
The story of our work three years ago.
That voice which swelled in full impassioned note
From out the loveliest mouth, the fairest rounded throat.
Our Prima Donna! here most rightly placed,
We send her greeting from the stage she graced;
Those comedies neat, elegant, and rare,
Our actresses—so gifted and so fair!
Our Funny Man, whose Oxford accent neat
Fills all his sentences with wit concrete.
All, all were good, and some were of the best;
Nor can I pause to tell you of the rest.
The operas, balls, the grand munificence,
In past, pluperfect, and in present tense,
Which makes the history of this pretty place!
And first we thank, for he has earned the right,
The host whose favored guests we are to-night.
'Tis he who feeds the hungry, helps the poor,
And turns no pleading suppliant from his door.
But for his kindness, we had not essayed
The various solos in which all have played.
His kindest deed remains yet to be told,
For like his namesake—in the legend old—
As he was resting in the busy Strand
A nightingale came, builded in his band
Her little nest, and thence most sweetly sends
Her music forth to charm the world, and tell
Of the good heart which cherished her so well.
But not alone to him our thanks are due,
But also patient public! unto you!
How much you've borne, alas! we ne'er shall know;
How much we've learned, we that at least can show.
Our little plays and tableaux vivants bring,
(And not forgetting those who came to sing)
Twelve thousand dollars—true metallic ring!
It might be worse! Ah, would it had been more
To heal those sufferings—which God knows are sore.

But we have done our best, and parting lay
Our grateful tribute at your feet, and pray
That this our theatre—may not pass away;
Let it remain—let it forever be
The tasteful temple of true charity.

CORONERS' CASES.

The Supposed Murder Case at Lovejoy's Hotel—Death the Result of Disease of the Heart, Accelerated by Violence.

An inquest was commenced yesterday by Coroner Gover, at Bellevue Hospital, on the body of John G. Myers, who was found dead in his bed at Lovejoy's Hotel. The following is an abstract of the evidence adduced before the jury:

John Bedeker, of No. 238 Rivington-street, testified that he is employed by Mr. Schwartz as a barkeeper, at the saloon No. 135 Broadway, corner of Cedar-street; he knew the deceased by sight for nearly a year; about 10:30 o'clock on Saturday morning Mr. Myers came in intoxicated and noisy, so much so that the proprietor was going to put him out; soon after deceased went out, and came back at 1:30 P. M., still intoxicated and noisy, but at length became quiet; about 5 o'clock he fell off his chair, and some men laughed at him; deceased got up and struck one of the barkeepers, and also a man named Robert Stacey, and a man named Ryan, the latter bleeding at the nose; witness went to deceased, and was taking him out of the saloon when Stacey and Ryan attacked and knocked him down.

Frederick Dickman, of No. 9 Frankfort-street, testified that he was a barkeeper, and corroborated the evidence of the previous witness; when deceased fell from his chair he got up angry and struck witness in the eye, as he stood before the bar; witness then went behind the bar and did not strike deceased; Myers then struck Ryan and Stacey; witness was about putting the deceased out of the saloon when the latter turned round and tried to strike Stacey and Ryan again, but fell down, instead, when Stacey and Ryan kicked him in the face as he lay; witness then drove them away and took the deceased into the washroom and washed the blood from his face; Mr. Callaway came in soon after and took him away.

John Dempsey, of Staten Island, testified that he entered the saloon on Saturday afternoon with his brother, Mr. Ryan and Mr. Stacey; as they were drinking at the bar deceased fell from his chair, and nearly everybody laughed at him; deceased got up angry and struck Stacey twice in the face; the latter was going to hit Myers, but was persuaded not to do so; as witness was eating oysters he heard some one scuffling, and his brother requested him to go out, which he did; witness had never seen deceased before.

Samuel G. Callaway, of Goshen, N. Y., testified that he had known deceased for several years, having been in his employ; he met him on Saturday morning at nine o'clock, and took breakfast with him at Lovejoy's Hotel; they walked down Broadway and separated at the saloon; at noon witness called for Mr. Myers, and went with him to Wall-street, to see Mr. Robinson, the engineer; deceased was sober at that time; about three o'clock witness went to the saloon and found the deceased with some friends, and left soon after to look for a gentleman who wished to see deceased; came back to say the person had not come, and went away again; on returning in half an hour he found the deceased had been beaten; asked the barkeepers who had done it, and they said they were strangers; witness had never known Stacey or Ryan; on reaching Lovejoy's Hotel deceased complained of an oppression in his chest, and had great difficulty in breathing.

Dr. John Beach testified to having made the post-mortem examination of the body; there was a general tumefaction of head and face, both eyes discolored, two abrasions over bridge of the nose, which was broken, and others on the left cheek and eye; there were five abrasions on left knee and three on the right one; under the scalp were several ecchymosed spots; skull not fractured; liver fatty, and heart greatly diseased; witness gave it as his opinion that death was the result of disease of the heart, probably accelerated by excitement and prostration, resulting from the violence received.

At this stage of the proceedings the investigation was adjourned till Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. In the meantime Officer Stillwell, of the Second Precinct, is directed by the Coroner to procure the attendance of both Stacey and Ryan in order that the case may be complete. A brother of the deceased has claimed the remains for interment.

Suicide of a German in First-street.

Coroner Wildey held an inquest yesterday, at No. 6 First-street, over the body of Theodore Gutberlet, who committed suicide by hanging himself in his bedroom at the above number. From the evidence of G. P. Stutzman, the principal occupant of the premises, it appeared that the deceased was a German, and kept a music-store at No. 377 Fulton-street, Brooklyn, and was very reserved and quiet; he engaged a room from Mr. Stutzman, on the third floor, about two months ago. On Sunday morning the servant girl knocked at his door but received no answer, when, supposing that he did not wish to be disturbed, she went away and returned at 11 o'clock, when she rapped again, with the same result. Yesterday morning Mr. Stutzman began to feel uneasy at the non-appearance of the deceased, so he proceeded to the door and endeavored to obtain an answer, failing in which he notified Capt. Mount, of the Seventeenth Precinct Police, who burst the door open. When he entered the room the Captain found the lifeless body of Gutberlet hanging by a cord fastened to the casing of the front window. It then appeared that the deceased had risen from his bed in his night-clothes, and hung himself. Upon this statement of facts the jury rendered a verdict of "suicide by hanging." Deceased was 45 years of age and unmarried. It is understood that he had no relatives in this country. He was in good circumstances and a number of certified checks was found on his person. The Coroner took possession of his effects.

Suicide of a Female Invalid.

An inquest was held yesterday afternoon, by Coroner Gover, at the house of Edward Mansfield, No. 839 Third-avenue, over the body of Betty Kahn, who committed suicide by hanging herself. Mrs. Mary A. Mansfield testified that the deceased had been in her employ as domestic for over two months, and that she had suffered a great deal from neuralgic pains in the head, being frequently laid up for a whole day at a time; she often threatened to destroy herself, but the family did not believe her to be in earnest. Yesterday morning Betty appeared quite stupid, which made Mrs. Mansfield believe that she might have taken something; she was very pale, and went down to the cellar after some coal at 9 A. M.; as she did not come up, Mrs. Mansfield went down after her, and found that she had committed suicide by hanging, herself to a beam, and she was almost kneeling down. When assistance arrived the girl was quite dead. George Bennett, who was painting the house, corroborated the testimony of Mrs. Mansfield. The jury rendered a verdict in accordance with these facts. Deceased was a native of Germany and 23 years of age.

The Death of Dr. Abrahams—Inquest Postponed.

Mention was made in yesterday's Times of the sudden death of Dr. Simeon Abrahams, at No. 31 Bleecker-street. Deputy Coroner S. N. Leo, M. D., assisted by Dr. Heuld, made a post-mortem examination yesterday, and found the internal organs of the deceased in an apparently healthy condition. The cause of death not being satisfactorily ascertained, Prof. Heuld took the stomach and contents for analysis, and Coroner Schirmer postponed the inquest until such time as the Professor shall be able to make a definite report. The remains will be interred in the meantime.

The Broome-street Assault—Death of the Victim.

It will be remembered that a German grocer named Henry Henning was brutally assaulted in his store, corner of Laurens and Broome streets, by some unknown thieves, on the night of Wednesday last. Since that time Mr. Henning has lain in the New-York Hospital suffering from the injuries so received, and his death occurred early yesterday morning. Coroner Wildey was notified to hold an inquest, but he concluded to postpone the investigation for a few days in order that the Police may make some further inquiries. So far they have not the slightest clue to the perpetrators of the murder. Mr. Henning was highly respected in his neighborhood, and the friends are greatly excited at the circumstances of his death.

Sudden Death of a Woman.

Yesterday afternoon the Twenty-third Precinct Police reported that Catharine Figuera, residing in Second-avenue, between Eighty-third and Eighty-fourth streets, died suddenly at a late hour on Sunday night from some cause as yet unknown. Coroner Wildey will hold an inquest.

Chur, of No. 42 Cliff-street, and purchased a hydraulic jack for $125, in payment of which he tendered a check for $325 on the Tradesmen's Bank, signed by E. A. Renault & Co. The paper was received as genuine and Chur gave Rowan his own check for $200. Soon after Rowan's departure the check was sent to the bank, where it was ascertained that no such firm had an account there. It was also discovered that Mr. Chur's check had been passed to Messrs. A. & E. Willetts & Co., in Pearl-street, in payment for goods. The prisoner was remanded for examination.

ASSAULTING AN OFFICER.

John Stontengan was arrested on one of the Staten Island ferry-boats yesterday by Officer Griffin, of the First Precinct, on a charge of disorderly conduct. The mother of the girl, Pauline Bauman, was also arrested for alleged complicity with her child in the thieving operations referred to. Both were committed for examination in default of bail.

Terrence McIntyre, of Fifth-avenue, corner of Sixty-seventh-street, and Patrick McCabe, of East Thirty-fourth-street, near First-avenue, were arraigned for alleged violation of the Excise Law. They were admitted to bail to answer.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

The Board met at 4 P. M., yesterday, Mr. Shannon in the chair.

The resolution permitting the erection of a temporary wooden building at the north end of Union-square by the Roman Catholic Orphan Protection Society was concurred in.

A petition from a number of persons doing business in Wall-street for the laying of the Nicholson pavement in that street was received and laid over.

A resolution was offered permitting hacks plying in the Central Park to stand in Fifty-ninth-street, Seventh-avenue, Eighth-avenue, Fifth-avenue, Seventy-second-street and One Hundred and Tenth-street.

Mr. McGinnis said that he understood parties living in the upper part of the City wished to monopolize the whole business of carrying persons through the Central Park; he hoped that the resolution would be adopted and thus the business be thrown open to all.

Mr. Norton said as the ordinance in relation to hacks now read, a certain party, once a member of the Common Council, was enabled to monopolize all the hack business of the Central Park. He hoped the resolution would be adopted.

The resolution was then adopted.

A resolution making eight hours a day's labor for all persons employed by the City Government was referred to the Committee on Law.

The resolution authorizing the purchase of a file of the New-York Herald for twenty-five years for $3,000 was passed over the Mayor's veto.

The Board then adjourned to 5 P. M. on Monday next.

A WORD OR TWO ABOUT SCHENCK'S SEAWEED TONIC.

From the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, April 4, 1867.

We presume that there is not a single reader of our paper or any other intelligent person in the community, that has not heard of Dr. Schenck's famous SEAWEED TONIC. It is one of the few really great medicines of the age, and is performing wonders wherever it is perseveringly and properly used. It is:

First—A Tonic or Stimulant.

Second—An Alkali.

Third—A Purifier, and yet perfectly harmless.

Three-quarters of the people in this community, more especially in the Spring, need just such a medicine as this. They feel indescribably dull and heavy, have little or no appetite, and after eating are still more heavy and dull and stupid; food sours, as it is sure to do when this condition of things exist; the mouth tastes bad, and there is a most uncomfortable state of matters every way; this need not be; the hint should be taken at once that there is something most emphatically wrong, and that it should be corrected without delay. Use Schenck's Seaweed Tonic, and our word for it you will soon be well. Your appetite will return, you will feel buoyant and energetic, and thus, doubtless, save yourself from a prolonged and expensive spell of sickness. It is marvelous what Schenck's Seaweed Tonic will do. It is the great friend and strength of the stomach; it urges that important organ to the performance of its duties, without which there is no health, no good feeling, no satisfactory purpose in life; it takes the food in hand, prepares it for easy and healthy digestion, and sends it gladly on its way to be converted into chyle and chyme and blood, imparting energy, strength and life to the patient.

The thousands of sallow-faced individuals seen in every city and town in the country, running over, as it were, with bilious poison, could be saved like a charm with Schenck's Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. There is no need of their making such miserable spectacles of themselves. A few Mandrake Pills to clear away the rubbish and filth, followed by a generous use of this Tonic, would give them good blood and plenty of it, a clear, healthy and handsome skin, and energize them into live men and women, instead of, as now, useless drones.

As a stimulant, Schenck's Seaweed Tonic is unequaled. Taken in the morning, or at any time, it is sure to create an appetite, without which there is but little use in trying to live. People must have food; and this food, when properly applied and distributed, sustains our natures and increases our strength. The Seaweed Tonic is sure to thus prepare the food for the body. It has been the means of saving thousands of lives, and is destined to save a million-fold more. With the Mandrake Pills we have already named, Schenck's Seaweed Tonic, used in time, we have no doubt whatever that seven-eighths of the diseases which afflict the land would be cut off, and the afflicted be easily restored to health.

The matter is very simple. The stomach is the headquarters of the body, the central point of the system. It is from this that all good and bad effects go out to bless or curse its possessor. Make it clean, put it in good running order, treat it handsomely, and there will be no more disease than in the solid rocks of the granite hills. We repeat it, that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic will do this for the Stomach. It is nature coming to the rescue of man in his peril.

When the nature and condition of disease are thoroughly understood, it will be seen that the doctrine we briefly inculcate is the true one, and that the medicine we advocate is precisely adapted to the doctrine. Thousands of "reconstructed stomachs" in nearly every State in the Union will gladly testify to this, and praise, as they should, the marvelous virtues of Schenck's Seaweed Tonic.

Why at least eight people in ten ought at once to use this Tonic may be stated:

1st. Because your stomach is out of order, and will, sooner or later, unless aided, break down.

2d. Because you do not have half the enjoyment of life that you might.

3d. Because your blood is not pure and good, and if not, you are liable to active disease at any time.

4th. Because you cannot think, or act, or do anything in business or out, so well as if you were in the condition this Tonic will place you.

5th. Because it is your duty to be healthy and strong, and have a "sound mind," and this on your own account as well as those about you.

6th. Because this tonic is within the means of everybody. One "regular" "doctor's" bill would pay for half you would use in a lifetime.

These reasons and becauses might be multiplied indefinitely, and each is as true as truth. We assert it, without fear of contradiction, that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic is one of the greatest compounds that chemical, medical or any science or skill ever achieved, and its magic merits have only to be known to make it the welcome visitant of every household in the broad land.

Dr. Schenck must get the stomach of every consumptive patient in this condition before his Pulmonic Syrup can be digested and penetrate the blood-vessels, to heal cavities in the lungs.

Dr. J. H. SCHENCK is professionally at his Principal Office, No. 15 North 6th-st., corner of Commerce-st., Philadelphia, every Saturday, where all letters for advice must be addressed.

He is also professionally at No. 32 Bond-st., New-York, every Tuesday, and No. 35 Hanover-st., Boston, every Wednesday. He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with his Respirometer the price is $5. Office hours at each city from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, each $1 50 per bottle, or $7 50 per half dozen; Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. A full supply of Dr. Schenck's medicines for sale at all times at his rooms, also by druggists generally.

AFFAIRS AT THE STATE CAPITAL.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Monday, April 15, 1867.

ASSEMBLY PROCEEDINGS.

The Assembly held a busy and protracted session this morning, entirely devoted to third reading of bills, of which a large number were passed or rather rushed through. A feeling of anxiety, which might almost be termed frantic in some cases, pervades the minds of members who are a little behind time with their bills, and the pressure to have them read and passed is enormous.

As the contents and in some cases the titles of the bills read this morning were unintelligible it is hardly worth while to occupy your space with any account of them. The regular Press dispatch will give the titles of all of them which possess any importance.

METROPOLITAN HARBOR COMMISSION.

The fate of the Metropolitan Harbor or Piers and Wharves Bill was finally decided at the special session held late on Saturday for the purpose of considering this bill.

The morning session had been so long and wearisome that members were not in good working trim; nevertheless, much interest was manifested in the measure.

After two or three minor amendments had been offered and disposed of, Mr. LITTLEJOHN, Republican, moved to amend by providing that the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and Comptroller should be a Board of Appeal to determine all questions that might arise as to charges for wharfage.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN, in support of his amendment, said that commerce was often driven to the winds and waves because of arbitrary rules relative to wharfage. If he could have his way, he would say to Brazil, to Russia, and to the wide world everywhere, send your ships to our ports; wharfage shall be free, trade shall be free and unrestricted, only give us the profits of trade. He did not know who the five Commissioners (provided for by the bill) might be, but it was giving them too much power to allow them full scope in fixing the rates of wharfage. He wanted the bill to pass in as perfect a form as possible, but would say that he could not vote for it in any form.

Speaker PITTS would support the amendment; he thought it right; but he desired to know why the gentleman from Oswego would not vote for it.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN explained by saying he had always been opposed to governing New-York City by Commissions, and could not therefore vote for the bill consistently.

Mr. ROBERTS, Republican, of Oneida, thought this was not simply a municipal question; it related to the commerce of the world, and was of general interest. He could see no inconsistency in supporting it on the part of any one. He deemed this bill a step toward great necessary improvements in the piers and wharves of the great commercial centre of our country, which should make them fit to be compared with the splendid docks of Liverpool and other European ports.

Mr. OAKEY, Republican, of Kings, supported the bill at some length, after which the amendment was carried.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN then moved to amend by striking out that portion which exempts from the jurisdiction of the proposed Commissioners certain individual or company interests—among them those of the "New-York Pier and Warehouse Company." He believed if the Commissioners were to have jurisdiction over a portion of the piers they should have the same over all.

Several gentlemen opposed this. Their respective statements went to show that these exceptional cases were those in which much capital had been invested, and this, in the case of the Pier and Warehouse Company at least, under direct act of the Legislature. Piers had been erected at great cost, they claimed, and these should be excepted.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN withdrew that portion of his amendment which related to grants to WILLIAM BEARD and others, but protested against excepting the Pier and Warehouse Company.

Mr. CREAMER, Democrat, had thought the great question which was to come before the House was whether we should make another Commission for New-York. But it seemed that it was rather to consider what should be done to the piers and wharves. He should have voted for Mr. LITTLEJOHN's amendment as a whole, he said, but would not as now shaped. In his opinion the piers of WM. BEARD and his friends should receive no more consideration from this House than those of any other individual or corporation.

Mr. WEED, Democrat, of Clinton, believed Mr. LITTLEJOHN should not have withdrawn any portion of his amendment. The bill allowed a Board of Commissioners the right of eminent domain to take piers or wharves, and there should be no exception to this in favor of any particular interest.

Mr. TRAVIS, Republican, of Westchester, thought the Commissioners should have complete control of all the piers, but suggested that Mr. LITTLEJOHN shape his amendment so that the Pier and Warehouse Company should make their own repairs, &c., under supervision of the Board. That would withdraw any objection to it. He considered that this bill was to create radical changes in regard to the wharves and piers.

He was questioned by Mr. WEED regarding the powers of the Commissioners, as defined by the bill, and replied that they could let all the wharves and piers to individuals if they chose, whereupon Mr. WEED pronounced it more infamous even than he first thought.

Mr. LITTLEJOHN replied to the suggestion of Mr. TRAVIS by stating that the Pier and Warehouse Company had acquired no property right since the act was passed which incorporated it. And if it had, he deemed there was full protection guaranteed in another part of the bill.

A motion that the Committee report progress on the bill and recommend its passage was lost, a strong majority voting against it. Another motion to report progress and ask leave to sit again was also defeated by an even more decided vote.

In the House, Mr. Speaker PITTS moved to disagree with the report of the Committee and order the bill to a third reading. He supported his motion in a speech of some length and much earnestness. It was of no avail, however, as his motion was lost, the vote standing 34 to 68. A motion to reconsider was lost by the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. J. G. Baker, Bigelow, Blair, Blauvelt, Boyd, Briggs, G. W. Buck, L. Buck, Burns, Chamberlain, E. S. Clarke, W. S. Cidor, Covell, Creamer, Cregan, Dixon, Dubois, Freer, Genet, Gibbs, Gill, Haley, Harper, Haynes, Hiscock, Irving, Jacobs, Keady, Kimball, Littlejohn, Lord, McKinney, Moody, M. C. Murphy, O'Reilly, Parker, Penfield, Phillips, Purdy, Baker, Ransom, Reed, Rogers, Sanford, Sharp, Starr, Torrey, Wood, Welles, Williams, Wilson, Wollman, Wooster—54.

NAYS—Messrs. S. Baker, Berryman, Bicknell, Button, Candee, Crandall, Fay, Gleason, Gridley, Gurley, Harrington, Hinsdale, Hitchcock, Hunt, Juiland, C. Murphy, Oakey, Plumb, Potter, Richmond, Salzner, Stephens, H. Smith, J. Smith, The Speaker, Stiles, Tarbox, Travis, Van Valkenburgh, Wagstaff, Wilber, D. P. Wood, Wyeth, Youngiove—35.

The Democrats, with the exception of Messrs. C. MURPHY, STEPHENS and WYETH, voted solid against the bill. The Republicans were much divided.

With the present temper of the Legislature, it would be difficult to carry through a bill creating a new Commission for almost any conceivable purpose. The constant increase of the Democratic majority in the City, against the confident predictions that the Commissions already created would check the growth of that party, has created a general belief on the part of the politicians of the Republican Party that nothing is to be gained in the direction of party success by any further extension of the system, and it is also thought wiser to await the action of the coming Constitutional Convention on this and all cognate questions.

CENTRAL RAILROAD BILL.

As the Senate has had no session since Saturday morning, there has, of course, been no further action on the veto. But an evident loss of confidence is exhibited on the part of the friends of the road, and it is now believed that at the utmost not more than seventeen votes can be relied on to override the veto. There is some talk of introducing a new bill, which, it is hoped, may overcome the Governor's objections. It is pretty late in the day to think of this, but the Central is strong in the Legislature, and may accomplish what it would be hopeless for any one else to attempt.

The Memory of Lincoln.

RICHMOND, Va., Monday, April 15.

The negroes commemorated the anniversary of President LINCOLN's death to-day. Two thousand met at the grove in the edge of the city, and were addressed by two white and several colored speakers. One of the whites made a radical speech, cautioning them to beware of political designs of the whites, and insist on equality before the law and in the schools. One of the colored speakers made a conservative speech. He said he was raised at the South; these were his people, and he wanted to be at peace with them.

To-night the theatre was densely crowded to hear addresses by R. S. DANIEL, city attorney, W. H. MCFARLAND, President of the Council, and MARMADUKE JOHNSON, an eminent lawyer, delivered by invitation of the colored people. SOLON ROBINSON presided. All the speakers gave them advice as to their new relations, and advised them not to be led to suspect friendly intentions of white citizens of the South by designing men who were forming them into secret societies for political purposes. Outside the theatre a large crowd of negroes were standing, dissuading others from going inside. During the speeches when the question of peace between the whites and blacks was named there were loud cries for peace.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE BROADWAY BRIDGE.

The foot-bridge at the junction of Broadway and Fulton streets was thrown open to the public about 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Alderman LOEW, the originator of the project, was on hand, wearing a somewhat gloomy countenance. It seems that he feared the ladies would be alarmed by what had been said in some of the public journals in regard to the exposure likely to occur during their ascent of the stairways, but his fears were groundless. The ladies ascended in numbers and appeared to be delighted with the bridge and with the immunity it afforded them from the dangers of a passage across the street. The policemen stationed at the junction of Broadway and Fulton-street found their occupations gone. No fair ones asked their assistance in crossing the perilous passage. One policeman was stationed on the bridge to prevent persons from loitering there. The structure is yet in an unfinished condition. It has to be painted and many ornamental parts added, including the lamps. The posts erected for the lamps will be replaced by others of more tasteful design. The bridge will probably be painted drab color, relieved by darker tints. It is intended to keep the bridge open for the public during business hours, as it is thought the workmen can proceed with their labors after the principal traffic of the day is over.

It will be remembered that the idea of constructing the Broadway bridge originated with Alderman CHARLES E. LOEW. On the 19th of February, 1866, he introduced a resolution for the appointment of a Special Committee on the subject, and Mr. LOEW, with Messrs. MCGINNIS, MOORE, GEDNEY and NORTON were appointed as such Committee. On the 12th of June the Committee reported in favor of the project. With some difficulty an appropriation of $15,000 was got in the tax levy for the construction of the bridge. On June 28 the Committee's report was adopted and approved by the Mayor, and on the 23d of July the contract for the construction of the bridge was awarded to the Architectural Iron Works, the price being $14,800. The design adopted was prepared by Messrs. RITCH & GRIFFITHS, architects.

Fault has been found with the design on account of its somewhat heavy appearance, but there is some doubt as to whether the bridge could have been made lighter in appearance and at the same time have been [illegible] sufficiently strong to bear the immense weight which will sometimes be placed upon it. It was thought better to make the bridge secure beyond all question than to sacrifice safety to effect. The suggestion that the staircases should be spiral instead of straight would have been carried out if possible, but it was found that the space would not permit of it.

It may not be generally known that the Parisian Press has lately taken up the subject of erecting foot bridges over the most crowded thoroughfares of Paris. La Liberté suggests that one be erected over the boulevard Montmartre, between the passages Jouffroy and the Panoramas, one of the most dangerous points in the city for pedestrians. La Liberté suggests that if the Government will not erect the bridges, private parties should offer to do it, charging a small sum as toll. The English papers have referred to Mr. LOEW's bridge in complimentary terms, and seem to be of opinion that similar ones might be erected in London with advantage.

Bold Attempt at Robbery and Murder—A School Principal the Intended Victim.

Shortly after the hour of noon yesterday, Mr. ALPHEUS D. DUBOIS, Principal of Grammar School No. 36, in Ninth-street, near Avenue D, was attacked upon the school premises by a ruffian, who attempted to take his life, and then robbed him of $2,900 in United States notes. It appears that Mr. DUBOIS had just returned from the Office of the Board of Education with the above mentioned sum, which he had drawn as the regular monthly salary of his teachers. As he entered the middle outer door leading to the private staircase of the building, he was suddenly felled to the floor by a powerful blow from an unseen assailant. Fortunately, he was not stunned, and rising quickly to his feet, he was confronted by a man whose face was completely masked with fur so that his features could not be distinguished. The villain held in his hand a piece of hickory stick about eighteen inches in length, covered with knotty protuberances, and which, it is supposed, he took from the wood pile in the yard. With this murderous weapon he renewed his attack upon the Principal, beating him about the face and head in a terrible manner. Mr. DUBOIS at length succeeded in getting close enough to his opponent to be able to seize hold of the billet of wood, which he did, and finally wrenched it from his hand. Finding himself thus cornered, in turn, the would-be murderer drew a slung-shot from his pocket, with which he struck Mr. DUBOIS a single blow upon the temple, but that so powerful as to render him unconscious, and immediately he fell to the floor, literally bathed in his own blood, which poured profusely from a number of gaping wounds upon his head. The next work of the assailant was to rob his victim. Pocket after pocket was hastily turned wrong side out, until that one was reached which contained the treasure sought for, which the villain at once appropriated, and then essayed to escape from the building. This he soon found was no easy task, for the door by which the Principal had entered was secured by a patent spring lock, which resisted all his efforts to open it. With a view of getting out of the window at the next landing, the thief started to go up stairs, but he had only reached the head of the first flight when he was met by Mr. WILLIAM HERRING, the Assistant Principal of the school, who had been attracted to the spot by the noise of the conflict. Seeing blood upon the stranger's face, and noting his disturbed and anxious manner, the gentleman at once connected him with something terrible which must have occurred down stairs. He accordingly seized hold of the suspicious character, and with him proceeded to the ground floor, where the truth at once became apparent to his mind. Mr. HERRING then called vigorously for help, and in a moment afterward was surrounded by the other teachers, who lifted Mr. DUBOIS from the floor, and procuring a carriage had him taken to his home in East Fifteenth-street where a physician was summoned, who pronounced the situation of the injured man as exceedingly critical. The package of money was found in the blood behind the school door, where it had been probably thrown by the thief, after he was taken down stairs. Officer CUMMINGS, of the Eleventh Precinct, had arrived meanwhile and taken charge of the criminal. At first the prisoner denied any knowledge of the affair, but finally admitted his guilt, and implicated the assistant janitor of the building, GEORGE MURRAY by name, who, he alleged, induced him to commit the horrible deed, by which each hoped to secure an equal share of the proceeds.

The truthfulness of this statement was strengthened by the word of two citizens—CORNELIUS W. MILLER and GARDINER AACHELEY who stated that they saw the pair together at the corner of Eleventh-street and Avenue C, at about 11 o'clock, engaged in an earnest conversation, over which they grew very much excited, and eventually walked away in the direction of the school. Search was accordingly made about the premises for the confederate, who was at last discovered in a coal-box in the cellar where had secreted himself. The guilty pair were then conveyed to Police Headquarters where the name of the intending assassin and robber was found to be JOSEPH JOHNSTON. Both the accused were then manacled and taken to the Essex Market Police Court, where Justice SHANDLEY held them without bail to await the result of Mr. DUBOIS' injuries. The prisoners are men of villainous countenances, strongly marked. The name JOHNSTON is supposed to be an alias, as the bearer of it is a Swiss. MURRAY, it is said, is a man of bad character, against whom charges of stealing have been preferred at various times within the past few months by scholars of the school, and his early removal was contemplated by the Board of Education. The accused bore their arraignment with the utmost apparent indifference, and went to their cells without a single expression of regret for their foul work.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

A SERIOUS AFFRAY.—A rather serious affray is said to have taken place on Sunday evening at a tavern in Yorkville nearly opposite the Third-avenue Railroad depot. Those engaged in the melée were apparently all Irish, and one of them, named KEEFE, who, if the facts as detailed are true, is a man rather accustomed to such brawls, was severely, though not dangerously wounded. He is said to have his jaw-bone broken, to have been stabbed, and otherwise injured. No arrests were made, nor any complaints preferred against the guilty parties.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

AN ACTRESS IN COURT.—Miss AMELIA SANDERSON, an actress having an engagement at a local theatre, yesterday appeared before Justice DAILEY and preferred a charge of larceny against Miss LOUISA ALDEN, a lady with whom she rooms at the Wall House, Fourth-street, E. D. The defendant appeared in court to answer the charge, and a preliminary examination was entered into. Miss SANDERSON testified that she missed various articles of value from her room, and a package of letters, all of which she found in a reticule owned by Miss ALDEN. Several witnesses were then called for the defence, and they all testified that the complainant was not a reliable person, while the defendant was a lady of unblemished character. The examination was then adjourned. While giving her testimony Miss SANDERSON stated that she took a dose of laudanum a few evenings since for the purpose of self-destruction, but she did not assign any cause for the act.

THE KINGS COUNTY DEMOCRATIC GENERAL COMMITTEE.—An adjourned meeting of the Kings County Democratic General Committee was held last night at No. 247 Fulton-street. The following delegates to the State Constitutional Convention were confirmed:

NEW-JERSEY.

FIRE IN BERGEN.—About 7 o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the main building of the dwelling-house of WM. GILBERT, situated on the grounds formerly known as Gilbert's Garden, on Bergen Heights, near the railroad cut. The fire originated in the attic from a stove pipe, and the firemen being almost powerless on account of scarcity of water, the main structure, a two-story and attic frame building, about 30 feet square, was entirely consumed. But one engine could get to work, taking water from a cistern, which was soon exhausted. By this means, and with water brought in buckets, the main wing was saved, except a one-story connecting wing, which was partially destroyed. The furniture was nearly all saved. Mr. GILBERT's loss will probably not fall short of $7,000, upon which there is an insurance of $4,000 in the Jersey City Fire Insurance Company, part of which is on the furniture.

TO BE READ.

Reasons so well known to many, compel us to say to all, that J. T. Lloyd has no relationship and was never in any way connected with us.

Our agents are never permitted to collect money for having names or advertisements put on unpublished maps. Ten thousand merchants and others in our chief cities and "FOUR MILES FROM ANY RAILROAD," will understand too well what we mean.

The American Agriculturist says: "We have already spoken favorably of the reliable character of the house of H. H. Lloyd & Co. This is not J. T. Lloyd. Notice that the initials are H. H."

The New-York Daily Tribune says: "In answer to inquiries made of us by letter, we have to state that the respectable firm of Messrs. H. H. Lloyd & Co. is another house, in no way connected with J. T. Lloyd, and that their publications may be relied upon for their merit and correctness."

From the New-York Christian Advocate & Journal.

"Lloyd's Maps.—H. H. Lloyd & Co., No. 21 John-st., New-York, are becoming world renowned for their enterprise and success as Map and Chart Publishers. Their catalogue embraces not only a useful and varied list; no expense is spared by them in issuing those which are opportune as to date, tasteful in finish and meritorious in quality. We have long used their maps in this office, and have come to regard them as a sine qua non among the furniture for the editor's sanctum. We are not surprised that Messrs. Lloyd & Co. are enjoying an extensive patronage, and that their maps are finding a rapidly increasing sale."

THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA CO.,
ESTABLISHED 1861.
The Immense Profits of the Tea Trade Greatly Reduced.

The proprietors became fully convinced, several years ago, that the consumers of Tea and Coffee were paying too many and too large profits on these articles of every day consumption, and therefore organized THE GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMPANY, to do away, as far as possible, with these enormous drains upon the consumers, and to supply them with these necessaries at the smallest possible price.

To give our readers an idea of the profits which have been made in the Tea trade, we will start with the American houses, leaving out of the account entirely the profits of the Chinese factors.

1st.........The American houses in China or Japan make large profits on their sales or shipments—and some of the richest retired merchants in this country have made their immense fortunes through their houses in China.

2d..........The banker makes large profits upon the foreign exchange used in the purchase of teas.

3d..........The importer makes a profit of 30 to 50 per cent. in many cases.

4th.........On its arrival here it is sold by the cargo, and the purchaser sells it to the speculator in invoices of 1,000 to 2,000 packages, at an average profit of about 10 per cent.

5th.........The speculator sells it to the wholesale tea dealer in lines, at a profit of 10 to 15 per cent.

6th.........The wholesale tea dealer sells it to the wholesale grocer in lots to suit his trade, at a profit of about 10 per cent.

7th.........The wholesale grocer sells it to the retail dealer at a profit of 15 to 25 per cent.

8th.........The retailer sells it to the consumer for all the profit he can get.

When you have added to these eight profits as many brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages and waste, and add the original cost of the tea, it will be perceived what the consumer has to pay. And now we propose to show why we can sell so very much lower than other dealers.

We propose to do away with all these various profits and brokerages, cartages, storages, cooperages and waste, with the exception of a small commission paid for purchasing to our correspondents in China and Japan, one cartage and a small profit to ourselves—which, on our large sales, will amply pay us.

Parties getting their Teas from us may confidently rely upon getting them pure and fresh, as they come direct from the Custom-house stores to our warehouses.
